BLOOD STAINED CAP OF MISSING OFFICER FOUND

Automobile Found Near Canton, N. C., Containing His Baggage and Persnal Effects, His Army Hat Splattered With Blood—Search for Body Begun.

(By The Associated Press)

ASHEVILLE, N. C., July 14—An extensive search of this section was begun early today for the body of Major Samuel M. McLeary, who disappeared from Raleigh on July 2 and has not been heard from since that date. Major McLeary's automobile was found near Canton N. C., yesterday, the car containing his personal effects and baggage as well as a blood-stained army cap. Until the finding of the cap, officials had entertained the hope that Major McLeary may have suffered a mental breakdown and had temporarily lost his mind, but that theory had been abandoned today and in its place was a definite belief that the officer had been slain.

A searching party organized by Major S. H. Williams, army inspector, assigned to the North Carolina national guard, left here today to search the mountains and streams of the Canton neighborhood for some trace of the missing officer.

According to information reported to the authorities yesterday, the majors automobile entered this section on July 3 and was abandoned later in the same day. The farmer who made this report stated that the machine contained three passengers. Another report was to the effect that the machine came down the mountain near where it was found later in the same day but with only two passengers.

Maj. McLeary disappeared from Raleigh. His failure to claim some money sent to Columbia, S. C. led to the discovery of his disappearance. He was enroute from Norfolk, Va., to Fort Moultrie, S. C.

Court of Appeals Dismiss Equity Suits

(By The Associated Press.)

PHILADELPHIA, July 14.—The United States Circuit Court of Appeals today dismissed equity suits brought by System Federation number 90 of shopscraftmen and the organization of clerks against the Pennsylvania Railroad for the enforcement of wage increase and working condition decisions of the United States Railroad Labor Board, on the grounds that the charge of conspiracy made in the suits had not been proved against the carrier.

Recessions In Employment In South Is Noted

(By The Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, July 14—Recessions in employment in several southern states were noted by the department of labor in its monthly review of conditions made public today, but the industrial situation in that section generally is fairly satisfactory.

Skilled workers find ready employment on building projects in Virginia, North and South Carolina, Georgia and Florida, the review sets out, and in a number of states part of the surplus of common labor is being taken care of in farm work.

Decreases in employment were most noticeable in Kentucky, Tennessee and Alabama due partly to coal miners and railroad shop workers being placed on a part time basis. Conditions in Virginia and North Carolina as summarized by the department follow:

Virginia—Fair sized building programs, state road work and a farming activities afford employment to the mapority of the skilled and unskilled labor. Industrial opreations continue on a fairly satisfactory basis, very few plants being entirely closed and those plants which are working on part time schedules have not been forced to release many workers.

North Carolina—There is very little unemployment apparent in any section. Considerable building is under way and skilled labor is very well employed there-on. There is available a supply of farm labor to meet all demands made so far.

Fifteen Cripples Examined at Clinic

At a very successful clinic for crippled children which was held at the office of the City Health Department last Saturday, under the direction nof Dr. Voschell, of Richmond, fifteen patients were examined. Of thes eseven of them had been examined before, while eight of them were new cases. These examinations are very helpful in that they determine the course of treatment necessary for the patient. In a number of instances the only thing needed is proper braces, and Dr Voschell takes the measurements and orders the braces for them. These braces are furnished at the lowest possible cost, and oftimes the family are financially able to pay for the braces themselves, in the event that they are not, an effort is made to secure financial assistance from other sources. In other cases proper exercise is the only thing needed, while in others it is found necessary to send the children to one of the special hospitals. Quite a number of patients have been sent to the University hospital at Charlottesville, and others have been sent to Richmond for special treatment. At the present writing a number of cases need a special massage and the health authorities are negotiating with Miss Ochberag, a Swedish lady who has had special training in this work, and in the event that she accept the task it is thought that she will give special rates for this work. However, she is spending the summer out of the city and no definite understanding can be had before September.

Sustain 6 Counts of Indictment In Case of Sinclair

(By The Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, July 14—Six of the ten counts in the indictment of Harry F. Sinclair for contempt of the Senate were sstained today in the Supreme court of the District of Columbia.

Justice Hoehling ruled out questions asked of Sinclair about the alleged contribution of Sinclair consolidated stock to Will H. Hays or some one representing the republican national committee and transfer of funds from the National Park Bank of New York to the National Metropolitan Bank of Washington, as not pertinent. He also made the same decision on the final count which charged Sinclair with refusing to answer any questions.

Seize Truck With Five Gallons Two Men Are Arrested

D. G. Wood, constable for the Dan River district, apprehended two white men who were riding in a Ford truck last night at 10:30 o'clock at Union Hill. Sensing the presence of the officer the men made a break and ran for it. The officer gave chase and they were caught at the Schoolfield garage. The occupants of the car were R. L. Griffin and J. G. Griffin, and they had five gallons of blockade corn whisky in the back of the truck. This is the second offense of J. G. Griffin and the first for R. L. Griffin. The liquor and the truck were confiscated and the two men were placed under arrest, charged with violating the Mapp-Layman prohibition law. They will be given a hearing in the near future.

DEMOCRATIC CONVENTION COST 2 MILLION DOLLARS

By ROBERT T. SMALL
(Copyright, 1924, by The Bee.)

NEW YORK, July 14—In Nominating John W. Davis and Charles W. Bryan, the Democrats held the first $2,000,000 national convention in political history. This is a conservative estimate of the cost of the big gathering in Madison Square Garden which ran for the better part of three weeks. No theatrical production ever approached this "show." Even the moving picture people have not yet claimed a $2 000 000 film. They have press agented up to $1 000.000 but never beyond.

Some one has suggested that the Democrats spent so much money on the convention and incurred so many obligations in connection with it that they wont have any funds with which to conduct the campaign. That however, is not their present worry. They are still figuring the convention cost and some of the results are rather amazing.

The local committee of entertainment which was non-partisan, claims it had disbursed approximately $500.-000 in connection with convention before it turned matters over to the Democratic committee at the end of the second week. Mayor Hylan had a fund of something more than $200.-000 appropriated by the city and he spent virtually all of that, if not more. So there was a direct charge of $1,-000 000.

Tex Rickard, lessee of Madison Square Garden, who furnished the place rent free, said the convention cost him $1,500 a day. He was kept out of the garden for three full weeks, making his share of the cost at least $31 500. It is estimated that the delegates, alternates and others officially attending the convention from out of town spent at least $200,000 for hotel rooms and meals. What they spent "on the outside" there is no way of figuring.

The headquarters maintained by the candidates at the various hotels cost $150,000 as a minimum. There are some who have estimated that $300,000 would be nearer correct. Mr. McAdoo alone had several floorth of the Hotel Vanderbilt.

By far the most interesting and unusual cost of the convention, however, was in the broadcasting of the proceedings by radio. This was borne of course by the radio operating companies. There is no way the direct cost of the broadcasting can be figured for the companies unquestionably would charge a great deal of it off to experiment and experience. There never before was such a sustained spell of broadcasting or the sending out of waves at such unusual hours.

It is possible, however, to make a rought estimate of this cost from the fact that one station alone here in New York, WEAF announced sometime ago that a charge of $10 a minute to be made for political speeches would scarcely cover the cost of operation.

The convention was in session about 120 hours. The microphones were working at least 20 hours more than that, making a total of about 140 hours, or 8,400 minutes. At $10.00 a minute the cost of the broadcasting to one station alone must have been about $84,000. Two local stations broadcast, so the $84,000 must be doubled to $168,000 for the cost in this city alone. There were about twenty other stations looped in by wire and wireless. It is virtually impossible to estimate their cost, but one radio expert said today he was confident the cost of putting the convention on the air must have been in the neighborhood of $350 000.

Figuring it all up it will be seen that the estimate of a $2,000.000 is a very moderate one.

Democracy comes high but we must have it.

ROYAL WELCOME FOR DELEGATES TO CONVENTION

Prince of Wales Opens Sessions of International Advertising Meet

(By The Associated Press.)

LONDON, July 14—A royal welcome today was given to the 4 500 delegates of the International Advertising convention by the Prince of Wales when he opened the official sessions of the convention at Wimbley.

In anticipation of the Prince's arrival America's 2,0000 delegates were present long before the meeting was scheduled to begin. When the British heir appeared, wearing a lounge suit, a convention button on the lapel of his coat, the American delegates broke into enthusiastic cheering, stampeded the platform and kept up their ovation for ten minutes. Then the prince delivered a short address declaring the convention open.

The large conference hall at Wimbley was filled to more than capacity early in the morning and it was necessary to pack several hundred delegates into adjoining halls, where the speakers later visited them and delivered their addresses over again.

The delegates, particularly those who spent weeks in traveling from their homes to Wimbley loosened their pentip enthusiasm, cheering for several minutes on the appearance of each speaker and otherwise surprising their English hosts with this introduction enthusiasm into a convention meeting. The Prince of Wales had a hard time starting his address, so loud and insistent were the cheers which greeted him. Eventually he discarded his prepared paper to tell the delegates that he had always believed in advertising and in fact that he had done much of it himself. Then he said:

"I think it is the very name of the convention which suggests international interest in the subject. When I see so many people in this hall from every part of the earth I am convinced this aim has been realized. You came together from all over the world to give and receive information and advice from each other regarding commercialism, which is the greatest problem we have to face today.

"I look forward to a new life, new understanding and new commercialism between the United States, the dominions and other countries to arise from this convention. I think this is the only way we can obtain that peace which is so much needed."

The prince was followed by Frank B. Kellogg, American ambassador, who also was given an enthusiastic round of applause followed by the singing of the American national anthem. The ambassador then referred to his gracious welcome at the hands of the English people and suggested that an interchange of convention meetings between the two countries was the best way to bring about an international accord, since it allowed people to understand each other.

Mr. Kellogg referred to the forthcoming London conference, saying he was confident the result of the conference would astonish the world and would create a new economic life. He felt the convention in London was timely and that it would serve to usher in this new economic life.

Viscount Burnham, owner of the London Daily Telegraph, acting as chairman of the opening session, he referred to the need of advertising to wake up the world from post war conditions. He was followed by Lou Holland, president of the Associated Advertising Club of the World, who said his organization desired advertising clubs to lend themselves to build up world commerce.

Harry Tipper New York chairman of the program committee, A. C. Pearson, commissioner of Chambers of Commerce of the United States and C. Harold, president of the Thirty Club of Lindon, also spoke.

Federal Forces Meet With Stiff Opposition from the Rebels Who Control and Have Support of City—Shells Falling Fast.

(By The Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, July 14.—Reported evacuation of the city of Sao Paulo by the Brazilian federal authorities was confirmed in official dispatches received today by the state department.

One dispatch, undated, from Sao Paulo described the withdrawal of the federals to Santos where, it was said, preparations were well advanced for a renewed attack upon the state capital. Troops were already in motion with this object in view when the message was sent.

This dispatch and another from Santos, also undated, emphasized the belief of the department's informants that American lives and property would be adequately safeguarded by both factions. All means of communication with stores of arms and ammunition were commandeered by the federals, the department was informed and the government was being pressed to declare a moratorium in the affected area for at least one month.

(By The Associated Press.)

SANTOS, Brazil, July 13.—Fighting in the city of Sao Paulo, seat of the Brazilian insurrection, has been of the most desperate character during the past few days, according to two employes of an American concern, who arrived here today after a perilous journey afoot from the beleaguered metropolis. They estimated that the dead among troops and civilians will reach 3,000.

The luxurious hotel Esplanadade at Sao Paulo has been turned into a hospital and is said to be crowded with the wounded. Shells from the beseiging federal forces have been falling in the city. One landed on a hotel, killing eight civilians. Some of the federal artillery stationed south of the suburb of YYpiranga, has been bombarding the city. Most of the fighting which has been taking place between here and Sao Paulo is said to have been between small bands of rebels and federal troops.

Refugees confirm the report that 600 federal troops who started last week from Santos to aid in the relief of Sao Paulo were cut to pieces by the insurrectionists.

Gov. De Campos, Sao Paulo state president, is understood to be here in Santos now under federal protection. He is declared to have said that the people of Sao Paulo wanted him to remain as a leader in the insurrection but he refused to join the movement, whereupon he was permitted to escape from the city.

The rebel forces defending Sao Paulo against the attack of the federal troops are estimated to number 34,000. This number is said to be increasing daily by recruits arriving from nearby regions. The federals at present are estimated to number 24,000, either on hand or en route. The continued federal bombardment of Sao Paulo is said to have turned the entire population overwhelmingly to the support of the leaders of the insurrection.

It is reported that the state legislature will meet Monday to take the necessary action for the besieged city's welfare. It is declared that military leaders, heade dby General Lopez, are preparing to take the offensive against the government by marching on Rio Janiero expecting to attract reinforcements en route.

The rebel forces are equipped in all departments, including anti-aircraft guns, airplanes and whippet tanks.

TOBACCONISTS LEAVE FOR A WEEK ON ROAD

After a splendid record for the week at home, the Danville baseball team left in motor cars this morning for Durham where they will engage the Bulls for three games. The team will be on the road for a week, since after the Durham series they will journey to Winston Salem for three days. The boys return next Monday for three games with Durham, the only contests of the week.

Wilson will probably be Murphy's pitching choice for this afternoon. McWhirter was slightly ill this morning and did not make the trip. He plans to go over to Durham tomorrow. Letts Westnedge was also left here having been suspended to make room for Wefers new outfielder recruit recently cut loose by the Giants, who will play in the game this afternoon. Murphy stated that he himself, may also get into the game, but did not reveal just what the changes in the lineup would be.

Pitcher Shoaf's injured finger is improving rapidly and the cut caused by Shoaf opening a can, will not affect his pitching in a day or two now. Despite the cut digit Shoaf relieved McWhirter on Saturday and pitched creditable ball. Harris is now back in his usual good form again and in him Murphy has one additional twirler to add to Shoaf, McWhirter and Wilson. Pitchers of better caliber than these four are hard to beat. The only thing that might be lacking now is the stick work and Danville would climb rapidly.

Murphy stated that after he gets straightened out this time, he plans no further changes, provided none of his men get sick or was injured.

FUND DRIVE FOR LEGION CONVENTION STARTS TODAY

At a very good meeting of the chairmen and their committeemen in the lobby of the Chamber of Commerce this morning just before the Legion fund drive, which began at 10:30 o'clock this morning. (Gus) Booth delivered a rousing good campaign talk, which supplemented by appropriate remarks by other members of the executive committee, should serve to put the campaign over in good shape today and tomorrow. In carrying out the program of work the committee and the territory has been so arranged that the business district has been completely zoned, thereby facilitating the work of the various groups in the drive.

Where possible, cash payments are preferred, and in the event that pledges are made which are to be paid later, the funds are expected to be in hand on or before the first day of August. On another page in this paper will be found a blank pledge which you are urged to clip and fill in the amount you will contribute to the fund and mail it to the Chamber of Commerce right away. You can assist the committee in a large way by mailing in the pledges instead of putting them to the trouble of having to look you up in person.

WIFE OF REV. V. G. SMITH KILLED IN AUTO ACCIDENT

Telegrams received here this morning from Miss Utha Gray Smith, daughter of Rev. V. G. Smith, former pastor of the Shelton Memorial Presbyterian church, of this city, brought word of the tragic death at Farmville of her mother, whom the telegram stated was killed in an automobile accident. The telegrams, which were received by Mrs. J. P. Marshall and L. B. Clark, friends of the family were filed at Farmville, this morning at 8 o'clock and stated briefly "Mother killed in auto accident. Funeral tomorrow. Utha Gray Smith." No details of the accident were available here early this afternoon.

It is presumed that Mrs. Smith and possibly the family were visiting the former's relatives in Farmville, when the accident occurred. After holding the pastorate at the Shelton Memorial Presbyterian church here for several years, Rev. Mr. Smith accepted a call to Parkton, N. C. The pastor and his family were quite popular among their friends in this city and news of Mrs. Smith's tragic death, will no doubt be a great shock to them.

Alexandria Awaits Final Trumpet

Two of the many roles played by Alexandra in her time At the right, the queenly matron most beautiful of all royalty. On the left her most recent photo, an old haggard woman awaiting the last fanfare of royalty, then—

By MILTON BRONNER
NEA Service Correspondent

LONDON, July 14—In her eighty-sixth year and feeling that she is very close to the grave, Queen Alexandra, mother of the present king of England, has gone into practically retirement in her palace at Sandringham London—ever loyal and loving to her—will know her no more.

And this has made a special impression, because the other day—Alexandra Day—for the first time in over 40 years, the Dowager Queen failed to drive through the city, while an army of maids and matrons sold roses for the benefit of her pet charity—the public hospitals

The aged queen's sight is dimming She is very deaf and quite lame. The rest of her life will be a sort of dying, a waiting for the end, while she dreams over her marvelous career, perhaps something like this

"1854—Ten years old Was I ever so young as ten? Seems almost impossible And yet I remember my happy, happy childhood when father was merely the poor heir to a poor little Danish throne I remember I dreamed of the fairy prince who was to lead me to unimaginable glories And the greatest glory was to be love—love of my husband, love of my people.

"1863—Nineteen and the papers and the poets said I was supremely lovely—as beautiful as a princess ought to be. England's great poet, Tennyson, sang of me so and the people echoed it. It comes back to me now—my arrival in England with my father and mother for my wedding day—my wonderful reception by the people of London, with all the joybells ringing and countless tens of thousands cheering me as we drove through the packed and beflagged streets—my fright of the great Queen Victoria and her kindly reception of me—the chivalrous tenderness of my husband-to-be—Edward, Prince of Wales.

"1869—Twenty-five—a mother—the laughter and the calls of children making the palace a real home—something to come back to after the glitter and the boredom of state balls and functions—something earnest and real—wee Georgie with his mashed finger which I must kiss to make well—and Louise wanting to be petted.

"1901—Fifty-seven The wonderful queen, she who ruled so long and so wisely is dead. Never such a career before Never such mourning as I have seen in the streets of London—flags at half mast—crepe on the houses—bells seemingly by thousands tolling their mourning lay—streets crowded with people from the four corners of the world, talking in hushed tones as if they feared to disturb the slumbers of the great dead

"1902—Fifty-eight What a contrast to last year! Now London is all a glory of flags and flowers The people have on festival clothes The streets are brilliant with soldiers and potentates from all over the globe. Bands are crashing into patriotic airs Bells are booming joyously Edward my husband, has this day been crowned king of England and I his queen consort in timehallowed Westminster Abbey I feel very humble I hope we will deserve the cheers that greet us

"1910—Sixty-six and a widow They have laid my husband torest . I have sent a message to Parliament thanking the members for their message of condolence In all truth I have said it was balm for my poor broken heart I meant it I hope it will silence the slander tongues which loved to spread reports that I was a neglected wife

"1924—Seventy-nine and very lonely I have just lost my oldest and best friend—General Dighton Probyn, who for 50 years faithfully served my husband and me Through m tears I have just written a card to go with the wreathe I am sending to place on his coffin

"'For m beloved General Probyn, with thanks for all he has been to me all these years—52 years We shall miss him so much but he will draw us up to Heaven, where he is sure to go. God bless From his devoted Alexandra'

"I am ready to go No one needs me now. My son, growing gray himself, a grandfather, has his own duties and responsibilities to pre-occupy him My favorite grandson—the Prince of Wales—a bonny lad—promises to win all hearts like my husband He is very tender and chivalrous to me, but he, too, is busy Well, there are still my dogs and my horses that I have always loved—and my gardens—and a few more days—and then—rest. Yes—rest That is good. Life becomes a great weariness—most things mere Dead Sea fruit—dust and ashes . . .

HUNT'S DAILY LETTER

By HARRY B. HUNT

NEW YORK, July 14.—Well, the Democratic convention, as might have been expected when Tex Rickard arranged to have it held in Madison Square Garden, was a knockout.

It broke all records for number of sessions, number of ballots, amount of money spent by delegates, for high hopes wrecked and animosities engendered.

The total expended in dollars and cents to stage the Democratic Contest, exclusive of delegates' expenses, according to the New York Convention Committee, was somewhere in excess of $800,000.

This committee had arranged its expenditures on the basis of a convention not exceeding two weeks in duration. When the deadlock carried the sessions over into the third week, the local committee passed the further financing of the show over to the Democratic National Committee

As this committee had a balance of only about $100,000, it immediately began to prune expenses and to put on pressure to bring about a nomination.

Most of the ushers were discharged, the lighting diminished and corners cut generally in an effort to save pennies for the later expenses of the campaign Enough was saved out of cash on hand to pay for the auditing of the convention bills and to move Democratic headquarters back to Washington.

To provide cash for the campaign ahead, however, the Victory Clubs will have to be called on for contributions. No $5 check will be rejected!

The selection of Davis to oppose Coolidge puts the campaign on an intellectual level seldom reached in American politics That is, so far as the personal qualities of the two men at the top of their respective tickets go

Neither is of what is generally known as the politician type.

Although both are lawyers, Coolidge has spent more time holding office than Davis and Davis more time practicing law than Coolidge. As a lawyer, Davis carries international as well as national recognition, having been made, during his term as ambassador to the Court of St James an honorary bencher of the Middle Temple.

* * *

Much has been said recently about Davis' employment as counsel for Wall Street interests, including J P Morgan & Co This inevitably will be made one of the points of opposition during the campaign.

As a balance to this, emphasis is placed by Davis' backers on the fact that he once was attorney, without fee or retainer for Eugene Debs and "Mother" Jones

This was in the days when Davis, a young lawyer without clients, had just hung out his shingle at Clarksburg, W Va.

Debs and "Mother" Jones came to town to take a hand in a campaign to organize mine workers thereabouts. West Virginia mine owners, then as now, didn't want their workers organized, and also controlled, then as now, the local authorities.

So Debs and "Mother" Jones were arrested on some technical charge and put behind the bars. Young Davis saw a chance to try out some of his newly acquired legal technique His friends, however, insist that what moved him was a sense of injustice in the strong-arm methods employed by the mine owners.

Anyway, he went over to the jail, volunteered his services to the union workers and shortly had them free again That story, doubtless, will be told with much emphasis in union circles during the campaign.

Campers Use Dethol and Sleep in Comfort

Mosquitoes Killed and Driven away by New, Scientific Preparation.

At last after years of patient research, science has conquered the mosquito—permanently From all parts of the country, enthusiastic campers have written to the Dethol Manufacturing Co Inc of Richmond, Va. in praise of this modern chemical preparation that both repels and kills mosquitoes—wholesale.

Unlike most other anti-mosquito compounds Dethol is effective both indoors and out. When spraved in a room or tent or about the front porch, the vapor-like particles of Dethol are carried far and wide by the faintest breeze Any mosquito within range of this spray is killed at once And when the death-dealing cloud finally settles down, it forms an invisible blanket, the odor of which warns away other mosquitoes for hours.

Dethol also is exceptionally effective against flies, roaches ants moths, bedbugs and all forms of loathsome annoying and destructive insect life Its penetrating spray searches out the hiding places of these pests and quickly destroys both the adult insects and their offspring.

As an aid in house cleaning too, Dethol is invaluable. Sprayed in musty places about the home, Dethol sweetly purifies and disinfects the air Sprayed lightly on tile, marble, windows, tubs, sinks, etc., Dethol cleans without hard scrubbing—you simply wipe off the sprayed articles with a damp rag Full directions on can Dethol does not stain

You really cannot afford to be without Dethol If your drug store grocery, hardware or department store hasn't Dethol, we will send you the handy combination package—complete with sprayer and large can of liquid—post free on recipt of one dollar. Dethol Mfg., Co., Inc. Richmond Va—adv

DESERT BORN GUIDES PILOT BAGDAD MOTOR CARAVANS

BEIRUT, Syria, July 12.—London to Bagdad as a reality has definitely replaced former Emperor Wilhelm's dream of Berlin to Bagdad. A journey from Haifa, Palestine, across the desert to Bagdad, which two years ago took about two weeks, is now being made in four days, thanks to the operation of a cross desert motor service between the two points.

Guides for the gasoline driven caravans are taken on at Beyrouth or Damascus, and the trip across the trackless desert in high-powered motors is made with the aid of desert dwellers trained from childhood to pick their way across the sands

In New York

NEW YORK, July 14.—Hell's Kitchen, one of the most notorious gang-breeding spots in all New York, is serene.

The boom of pocket cannons and the clang of patrol wagons is replaced with the tuneful tinkle of ukelele strings and the harmony of ballroom quartets.

The noisiest note in the kitchen now is the clash of colors of hod-carriers an dplasterers daughters treking out to a Saturday night jig

Where once predominated slinking figures in mufti clothes, with caps pulled far down over nervous eyes the cake-eater type, doted to the height of fashion now holds sway

Hell's Kitchen's new generation mimicks the dress and manners of society

In the old days a murder in the Kitchen was only cause for passing comment Now it creates as much of a furore as it would in any small town.

Hell's Kitchen earned its name many years ago and was applied to the territory between Tenth and Eleventh avenues in 40th street. Hell's Kitchen itself was a ramshackle frame house in the middle of the block where the gangsters met and hatched their plots It has since been torn down

The "Tub of Blood" was the name of one of the put-resque saloons in the days when crime flourished in the Kitchen and a life was worth no more than a word of contradiction

Only one old-fashioned custom holds in the Kitchen that is the typical Irish wake the "sitting up ceremonial with the dead

WHY SUFFER WITH YOUR EYES?

DR J. D. BUTLER, OPTOMETRIST TAKING BLOOD PRESSURE.

A blood pressure instrument looks somewhat like a watch. The operator straps a rubber bandage around the patient's arm and attaches the instrument to the bandage, then with a little rubber bulb he inflates the bandage with air causing the hand of the instrument to turn around and register the high and low blood pressure, while at the same time he listens to the heart action through a stethescope placed over an artery in the arm at the elbow

The stethoscope used is the same as the little one made of rubber tubing that a physician places in his ears applying at the same time the trumpet shaped part over the patient's heart in order to ascertain the functioning of that organ.

Sometimes kidney trouble and systematic diseases affect the eyes and the skilled specialist takes the blood pressure so that he may be certain of his diagnosis He does not simply test the patients eyes for glasses he makes a thorough scientific examination, and if he finds that any bodily disorder is causing the eye trouble, the patient is referred to the family physician, or surgeon if medical treatment or an operation is needed and to a dentist in those cases where the teeth are found to be responsible for the visual ailment.

MEMORIAL CHURCH DEDICATED TO MEMBERS WHO LOST LIVES

(By The Associated Press.)

CHATEAU THIERRY, France, July 14.—Honoring the memory of some 500 members of the Reformed Church in the United States who lost their lives in the Great War, there was dedicated here today a memorial church erected by the General Synod. Rev. W. Stuart Cramer, pastor of the First Reformed Church of Lancaster, Pa., officiated. Messages of appreciation were ready from President and General John J. Pershing.

The church contains a memorial pulpit to 22 chaplains of various religious bodies who lost their lives in the service of the American Army and Navy during the conflict The names of these men follow:

Killed in Action.

Thomas M. Bulla, Presbyterian, Walton S. Danker, Episcopalian; William F. Davitt, Roman Catholic; John A Deaver, Presbyterian; Harry Deiman, Congregationalist; Michael W. Keith, Presbyterian; Colman E O'Flaherty, Roman Catholic, Charles D Priest, Disciple; Wilbur S. Sewell, Methodist; Daniel S. Smart, Prebsyterian.

Died from Other Causes.

Albert D. Bell, Lutheran; John G Boone, Disciple, John G Breden, U. Brethern, Horace A Chouinard, Episcopalian; William B Cornish, Methodist; Herbert P Doyle, Roman Catholic, Auremus T Howard, Baptist; John C. Kerr, Methodist; John F Roman Catholic, Timothy Murphy, Roman Catholic, Wm H J. Willby, Congregationalist.

Mrs Theodore Roosevelt, Sr., has placed a memorial Bible in the church in honor of her son Quentin

The Mercersburg Academy has placed the bell in the tower in memory of Mercersburg men who lost their life in the war Other institutional memorials are from Franklin and Marshall College and Academy, the Theological Seminary of the Reformed Church at Lancaster, Pa., Ursinus College, Collegeville, Pa., and the Central Theological Seminary of the Reformed Church, at Dayton, Ohio.

The communication from President Coolidge is given below.

"I am indeed glad to have an opportunity of joining in this somewhat remote wa yin the dedication of the Memorial church in Chateau Thierry.

"Not only will such a structure be a fitting monument to those who gave their lives, but it will be a source of peace and comfort to those who in years to come makes a sorrowful pilgrimage to this spot where so many of our boys made the last sacrifice

"I am especially glad that it embodies also a memorial to those who, as chaplains, played a great but inconspicuous part in the service. It is eminently appropriate that a tribute to their quiet bravery should be here enshrined to serve as a reminder that even in the midst of the horrors of war the higher things were not forgotten."

General Pershing's message is as follows

"Please tell my friends of Chateau Thierry that my heart is with France now in the colossal task of rebuilding the places made desolate by war as it was in the hours of armed conflict. I feel that I speak the voice of America when I say that nothing can ever break the bond of love and sympathy between our people which was forged in the fires of our common sacrifice.

"May this Church through the ages be the emblem in stone and bronze of that undying devotion which lives in the hearts of my countrymen

"In your work of reconstruction my highest wish for you is that you may be as brave and strong as were your devoted Poilus on the fields of battle. Speedy success will then be yours."

"White Indians" From Panama

Margaret, Alo and Chepu, the "white Indian" children and, at rear, Richard Marsh, explorer, with "regular" Indian.

By STEPHEN HANNAGAN.

NEW YORK, July 14—Three jungle children—"white Indians"—brought to the world's center of civilization, have shown no interest in the unusual sights about them

Tall buildings, subways, rushing automobiles, luxurious beds, white men for servants, do not change their staring gaze

They are members of a group of eight Indians brought from the Darien jungles of Panama by the Richard O. Marsh expedition.

For months they will be like goldfish in a bowl, a germ under a microscope, being optically dissected by bearded members of scientific organizations

Instead of the swish of breezes through palm leaves they hear the purr of electric fans and the rumble of high-tension civilization

Ostracized in their own land because of the pink tint of their skin the whiteness of their hair, they are followed and jostled here by curious crowds

They can't understand it They don't even try In silence they stare, unmoved, as puzzled as the curious mobs who rush taxicabs and hotel lobbies for a sight of these strange aborigines from Panama

Marguerite, Alo and Chepu, the three white Indians, do not talk among themselves, or to the five bronzed members of the troupe

The whites are not interested They merely follow directions

Marguerite has learned to use a powder puff and occasionally she weeps tears of temperament She is absorbing civilization rapidly, but the two boys remain stoic

In their luxurious rooms at the Waldorf-Astoria hotel, Marguerite, Alo and Chepu are the most lonesome children in the whole world. There is no place for them to frolic and play.

Instead of being scorned, as they were in their jungle village, they will be trailed every time they step from seclusion

The happiest moment of their time in New York was whe nlittle Chepu first looked into a large mirror in his room at the Waldorf, and saw himself in his funny American clothes—funny to the boy who never before had had a stitch on his back

DAVIS EXPECTS TO CARRY FARM AREAS IN WEST

Week-End Conferences Are Bringing Hopes of Polling Big Vote

(By The Associated Press.)

LOCUST VALLEY, N Y., July 14.—John W Davis' hopes of carrying western agricultural States have gone up as a result of week-end conferences with Senator Walsh, of Montana and Carl Vrooman, of Bloomington, Ill., here

Mr Vrooman, who was an assistant secretary of agriculture under Wilson, saw the Democratic nominee at Matapan, his extensive estate there It is understood that Mr Vrooman, who farms large tracts in eastern Illinois, urged Mr Davis to address himself with vigor to agrarian problems and presented practical proposals for land reforms

Both the western leaders recommended that the candidate devote a large part of his time to a speaking asserted he intended to do so.

tour of their sections and Mr Davis

Refreshed as a result of his restful week-end Mr Davis motors to New York city today to begin in earnest the program for his campaign He will see seveay party leaders during the day at the home of Frank L Polk Residents of Locust Valley expect that he will make Matapan his principal headquarters during the campaign, going to Clarksburg, West, Va., for the ntification and for other brief stays

Neighbors of Mr. Davis and tradespeople and villagers in Locut Valley, mindful of the fame that came to Oyster Bay during Theodore Roosevelt's campaigns fro mSagamore Hill, hope that he will keep to his home here until next November Sagamore Hill is less than a dozen miles from Matapan

Mr Davis passed a quiet Sunday attending church and going for a horse-back ride in the morning and receiving social callers and taking a dip in the sound in the afternoon He played no golf.

TO OFFICIALLY NOTIFY DAVIS AT CLARKSBURG

(By The Associated Press.)

NEW YORK July 14—The ceremony of officially notifying John W. Davis of his nomination for the presidency by the Democratic party will take place at Clarksburg, W. Va., it was learned today.

Formal announcement of the arrangements for the event which probably will take place within two weeks is expected within the next few days

Mr Davis will deliver the address of acceptance, which will signalize the opening of the Democratic campaign at the house where he lived as a boy and in the town that has been the residence of his family for a century. The house is now occupied by a sister of the nominee

The nominee said he was anxious to get the preliminaries out of the way, as soon as possible, as prolongation of the convention already had somewhat delayed the Democratic appeal to the country for control of the government.

After two days of comparative rest at his country home in Locust Valley, Long Island, Mr. Davis drove to New York this morning considerably refreshed and ready to plunge into the last of the preliminary work that must be done to set up the party organization Islesboro, Maine for a few days before returning to Clarksburg for the notification.

Police Guard Flag Over the French Embassy in Berlin

(By The Associated Press.)

BERLIN, July 14—Policemen with rifles from atop the Brandenburg Gate and the roofs of nearby buildings, guarded the flag flying over the French embassy today The measure was a precautionary one taken to prevent a repetition of the incident of three years ago o nthe French national holiday when th etri-color was wrested from the staff by men who reached the embassy roof from adjacent buildings. Other policemen with rifles also marched back and forth directly in front of the embassy where a string of automobiles constantly brought and took away members of the diplomatic corps calling to pay their respects

The French embassy here hoists its flag only on July 14

(By The Associated Press.)

BATTLE CREEK, Mich., July 14.—Rev. Oren Van Loon pastor of the Community Church at Berkeley, Detroit suburb, was a prisoner under the influence of drugs most of the eleven days between his disappearance from his homo and last Friday when he collapsed on the street here, in the opinion of Dr. F. A. Kinsley, his physician. During th period Dr. Kinsley believes Rev. Mr. Van Loon received little food or water.

The pastor's condition was somewhat improved today although he had no recollection of what had happened while he was missing nor how the "K K. K." found seared in his back in two-isch letters was placed there

Police were able to question Rev. Van Loon about a letter found in a black bag he carried. The letter was addressed to a Mr. Davis and discussed a livestock deal It said that the writer was going to Chicago and asked Davis to meet him there. Rev. Van Loon said that the letter was a forgery.

The pastor said the last he remembered between the time he left home, bound on an overnight speaking trip until he was found here, is of going to a Royal Oak bank, cashing his church salary.

THE blushing June bride and the courageous June bridegroom are not apt to think of marriage in terms of household budgets. Such topics occur to them with the growth of wisdom and experience.

They learn before long that the sweet concord of their courtship days is best preserved when all bills are paid regularly and there is no ground for mutual accusations of shiftlessness or extravagance. But they may look a long while for a budget system that is simple and easily worked, and which is tested sufficiently well by results to insure their living within their income.

Budgets Carefully Studied

The Phoenix Mutual Life Insurance Company which, like all insurance companies, is eager to do anything that will insure the health and happiness of policy holders and potential policy-holders, and thus prolong their term of life, has recently given careful attention to this question of budgets.

The company found in its offices at Hartford, Conn., a wealth of intimate detail about its thousands of policy-holders that made possible the creation of a system based on successful household management. It formulated the resulting budget plan in a chart for determining the proper use of incomes of various size, and for keeping track month by month of expenditures and budget appropriations. This it has made available to the public in the hope of improving "The Business of Running a Home."

The budgeting is illustrated by the above chart, which includes directions for dividing, according to monthly expenses, the incomes of families who receive between $1,000 and $5,000 a year. These include eighty-seven per cent of all income producers in the United States. Those who make between $1,000 and $2,000 a year are thirty-six per cent of all income producers, those who make between $2,000 and $3,000 comprise twenty-nine per cent, and those who make between $3,000 and $5,000 are twenty-two per cent

Chart Self-Explanatory

The chart is self-explanatory All that is necessary to discover whether your expenditures are balanced so you will "break even" at the end of the year is to divide your annual income by twelve and search for the column that most nearly approximates that figure, and applies also to the number of persons in your household.

Suppose for instance that you are married and have three children. Your income may amount to $3,700 a year, the amount that is tax-exempt under the present federal income tax law. It is plain that the division given for a family of five with an income of $300 a month is the one that applies to your case.

This shows $70 as a reasonable sum to pay for rent or its equivalent. You could safely spend $50 a month for food, $45 a month for clothing, $30 a month for insurance, and you could devote the definite sums shown to the various other necessities of living.

Maintain Proportion

Of course the expenditures of some families would not fit exactly the headings given. In that case they can be changed if care is taken to set aside approximately the same proportion of income for expenses of a similar type to those shown in the chart.

This budget book is built on a plan that is said to be more flexible and practical than the usual run of such systems. A monthly sheet shows simultaneously the budget appropriations and presents spaces for entering the expenditures actually made. This permits a monthly audit of expenses and gives ample opportunity to check deficits.

The chart, while less romantic than love and kisses, presents, in the opinion of the insurance company, almost as much promise of preserving the sweet savor of marital bliss. The company expects hearty agreement from such couples as have survived the honeymoon period.

INDIANS HAD LITTLE ON THEM!

By PHILIP J. SINNOTT

SAN FRANCISCO, July 14.—This revival of interest in the bow and arrow out here in California has reached the point where many devotees would rather cast off the benefits of gunpowder rifles shotguns and other developments of later years and seek their game as did their medieval forebears

And now it has gone still further—into an "Adam and Eve" contest with the California wilds as the setting and two back to the primitive' folks as the contestants Also, it will have a bearing on the oft-argued question as to who has the most grit, the male or female of the species

"A man of this century isn't so smeared over with civilization that he cannot go out and wrestle nature in the raw and make nature give him a good living says Vincent Dell'Aglio, famous as a bow maker

Thus he prefaced his announcement that he was going into the woods with only a bow and arrow, and make his living come from his archery

Dell'Aglio's announcement was immediately challenged Ruth Hope, San Francisco sportswoman at once declared that what man could do woman could do still better She announced that she would go into the wilderness for the same length of time as Dell'Aglio sets, and make herself a better livelihood with exactly the same weapons, the bow and arrow

Miss Hope however insists upon one companion—her "archery dog" Buster The latter has been trained to retrieve arrows and game, and Miss Hope can't see for a second where she is taking an advantage in insisting upon Buster

But it's soon to be settled Dell'Aglio has chosen the woods of southern California as his hunting grounds Miss Hope will do her "back-to-nature in the northern California forests

Success for either one is hardly likely to cause the U S navy to discard its 16-inch guns and arm its sailors with bows and arrows—but the outcome is interesting, anyhow

BLACK VELVET SHADOWS ON THE SUMMER SEASON

COMING events cast their shadows before, and when the shadows are of black velvet, they forecast a fall mode for this fabric. Even while the temperature still hovers in the high figures, the wise woman has a weather ear out for sartorial hints for the future. And she finds that both Paris and New York fashion authorities predict a gorgeous velvet season with the opening of the formal months.

Illustrated is an advance model just relayed to us from Paris by Henri Creange. This robe manteau makes use of the always chic combination of black and white. Of supple black velvet woven on the south Manchester looms, it is admirably set off with facings of white crepe de chine. Besides being a forecast of the future, this dress may also be conjugated in the present tense, for it is equally chic developed in black Mirrokrepe, with facings of the same crepe satin in white.

While the beltless silhouette is the most fashionable at present, it is not always adaptable to every figure. But one need not therefore despair of copying a mode which is otherwise becoming. In this dress, for instance, a draped belt may be added, as shown in the smaller sketch, and will probably render the dress more becoming for some with whose figure the tube silhouette does not agree.

In fact this is a most adaptable costume on all counts, for the collar may be worn high or low, according to whether one is on the street or in the drawing room.

The loose "panel" on the long tight sleeve corresponds pleasingly with the two rippled flounces on the dress, and adds a softening touch to what might otherwise be a too great severity.

An Intimate Story of Innermost Emotion Revealed in Private Letter

LETTER FROM JAMES CONDON TO SALLY ATHERTON

DEAR, DEAR WOMAN:

I arrived in Pittsburg this morning. I never realized until now how grimy and gray and altogether unlovely Pittsburg is. I was miserable before I left this place to go to see you, but also my visit to you has only made me more miserable.

You are growing away from me, Sally, all the time. I really think I was happier when Sam was alive, for at least you depended on me to help you take care of your blind husband, and at times you acted as though I made life a little easier, a little brighter for you

At the time of Sam's death you seemed to lean on me a little, and I was inordinately happy—perhaps I was too happy, because poor old Sam had to die to make me so I thought then that maybe in time you would grow to love me a little, but you went back to your work—and—forgot me.

I wired you twice, but you did not answer. You had put me as much out of your wife as Sam in his new-made grave over there in the cemetery

At last, dear, I could stand it no longer I determined to go and see you and put my all to the test Then I said to myself that it was weak that I would not go, that I ought to know you didn't care for me I steeled myself over and over again to kiss the rod, and I thought a thousand times to stay away from you—and then the glorious witchery of you, the gleam of your bronze gold hair, the glances which always beckon, night after night I used to lie in my bed and think of them, until, sleeping or walking, I could only see the stars in your eyes, and the scarlet flower they call your mouth

As I walked daily from the office to the park where we used to go when you were here, I could hear above all the noises of the busy street the lisp of your footfalls beside me, and in the dust among the grime and dirt that others had left upon the sidewalk, I only saw the print of your feet in memory's path

(Do you know, Sally, I've always wondered how you could stand so sure and straight upon those little feet without asking support from anyone to help you keep your equilibrium)

At last I reached a point where I could only pray that once more I could know, instead of this aching silence, the rippling laughter with which you were wont to break our understanding silences I used to listen for the rustle of your gown and I was almost angered when other women would brush past me and I caught the swishing of their skirts

Then I took a sudden resolution I swore I would come through, that I would go to you, and although you might turn the sword in my side, I would pull it out and throw it away and come back, cured for evermore

But oh, Sally, Sally, the wound is deeper and more terrible than ever

(Copyright, 1924, NEA Service, Inc.)

FASHION NOTES

PRETTY SASH.

Practically every frock that is not sleeveless is equipped with a very decorative sash that may be placed high or low according to one's taste and one's figure

MUCH FUR

Much fur is evidently to be used for fall and winter—double and triple bands are seen on the bottoms of model coats and dresses.

FINGER RING.

A very interesting finger ring is diamond shaped, composed of a triangular sapphire and a triangular emerald, joined with a narrow row of diamonds

CHAMOIS GLOVES.

Chamois skin gloves, very large and comfortable, are very smart with the tailleur.

IVORY CREPE.

A gown of ivory colored crepe with black figures is fringed with ball fringe at the hem.

The Tailored dress frequently has a circular hem these days but it is so perfectly cut that the line is scarcely different from the tubular frock but there is more freedom for walking

MAN INJURED BY AUTO FILES SUIT

HIGH POINT, N. C., July 12.—A suit for $10,000 damages has been filed with the clerk of the Guilford County Superior Court by John W. Kivett, superintendent of the High Point abattoir, against Eugene Marsh for the injuries he received when struck by the automobile which was being driven by Marsh's son several months ago.

In the complaint filed, Mr. Kivett alleges that he was walking along the road when young Marsh came driving recklessly up the road and struck. As a result he says that he spent a great deal of time in the hospital.

The accident occurred just south of the city on the morning of January 3.

AIRPLANES SOW GRASS SEED

Miami, Fla., July 12.—One of the latest commercial uses of the airplane, which may possibly be perfected to revolutionize certain phases of agriculture, is that of sowing seed by 'plane, successfully demonstrated in the suburban territory of Miami recently, where 640 acres of land were sown to carpet grass within a period of 20 minutes. For the area sown during the experiment, it was said, it would require two men hand-seeders 30 days.

NEW FRENCH LOAN IN FALL

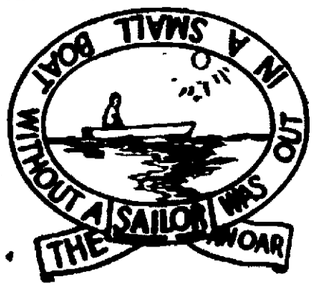
PARIS, July 5.—The French Minister of Finance has declared his intention to issue a consolidation loan in the autumn. Until then he will make no new bond issue either for the treasury or for the credit national.

The new cabinet is for the moment restricting its activity to taking stock of the financial situation, and there is absolutely no question of a purpose to introduce fiscal innovations or reforms.

DAILY PUZZLE

A motorboat ran over a course at a speed of ten miles an hour; and made the return trip at a speed of fifteen miles an hour. What was its average speed on the entire trip?

Yesterday's answer:



By inserting the word "SAILOR" in the crossing, the sentence is completed. It is read as two words: "Sail or," the second time.

BEST SELLERS IN LITERATURE TODAY

With the increasing population in the United States, it is but natural that it will require additional reading material, and a survey of the field indicates that an enormous number of magazines, books and newspapers are now being read. And in order to keep pace with the demands, a number of new publications enter the field every year. Some of these survive and some of them fail to make good. In this connection it is interesting to note that some of the good ones prove to be an absolute failure; while some of the bad ones are successful. It is necessary for a publication to have the stamp of approval from the reading public, otherwise it will soon find itself slipping, with complete failure as the inevitable outcome. Books have been surplanted to a large extent by the daily newspapers and the magazines. The great majority of the reading public do nto have the time to devote to reading books, are turning their attention to the short stories in the magazines and the magazine sections of the Sunday newspapers, thus affording a renumerative field for the short story writer ested in knowing what kind of houses of today. Just as people are interested in the style of clothes worn by other ladies, al lare more or less interested in the kind of books, magazines and newspapers the other fellow is reading.

A check-up on the local situation indicates the five best sellers, among the magazines, books and newspapers sold in Danville, which are listed below in the order of their sales. The five best selling magazines are, True Stories, The American Magazine, The Red Book, Cosmopolitan and Love Stories, with western stories holding sixth place newspapers that sell best in the city, on the list. The five out-of-town are, The New York Times, The New York World, The Richmond Times-The Greensboro Daily News, The Dispatch, The Washington Times and popularity of the Baltimore Sun is increasing and it is enjoying a good circulation. The five best selling books are, So Big, by Edna Ferber; My Book and My Heart, by Cora Harris; The Philosophy of Love, by Eleanor Glyn; The Life of Woodrow Wilson, by Josephus Daniels, and Leave it to Psmith, by Wodehouse.

JUDGE COMBATS CRIME MOTIVE OF BANK ACCOUNTS

LOS ANGELES, July 9.—Poverty is no crime, but often it is a motive for crime, says Judge Arthur Keeth, of the local superior court, who has instituted a probationary system under which all prisoners he releases on probation are required to start a bank account with a certain percentage of their wages.

The first results of the system were make known by Chief Probation Officer May, to whom the men and women on probation are required to submit their bank books once a month. The report indicated that out of a total of 20 of the wards all but two had placed more than $100 each in savings accounts during the period of four months.

The knotty problem of today is, who is responsible for the split in the Democratic party; the K of C, or the K. K. K.

THE COUNTY SPEED TRAP

It has been reported that a rural traffic officer deliberately planted a trap at a curve on the Ringgold road and from his point of vantage grabbed off the numbers of forty-seven unsuspecting autoists one Sunday afternoon recently. These people were charged with a technical violation of th stat traffic ordinanc, which allows a maximum sped of thirty miles where the road is straight ahead and the driver is able to see for a distance of one hundred yards; while a maximum speed of fifteen miles is allowed while rounding curves and at cross roads and at intersection with other roads. And every one of these owners were notified by mail that they were expected to appear in person and answer to the charges or to mail check to cover the amount specified in the communication. There are so many traffic regulations, both in the cities and in the rural districts, that it is practically impossible for anyone to obey them to the letter, and if this could be done every automobile driver in the country would be arrested every day in the year. In view of this condition of affairs it is poor policy for a traffic officer in the rural district to arrest a man who is making sixteen miles an hour where he can only see ninety-nine yards straight ahead It is a difficult task for the average person to stand in their tracks and guess the distance of one hundred yards with and degree of accuracy, then if this ordinance is to be enforced to the letter, the state owes it to its citizens to place a sign at every place in the road where it is impossible for the driver to see one hundred yards ahead. And thereby warn the motorists instead of allowing their rural officers to take advantage of the situation to ensnare the citizens who make good roads possible, and in this way reap a rich financial harvest from technical violations of the law.

The only logical remedy for this condition of affairs is to abolish the fee system and put the traffic officers and the justices of the peace on a strictly salary basis, also make it imparative that the violator must be arrested and hailed before the justice in person instead of filching the number off the machine and dropping the owner a postal card, summoning him to appear before the justice or to mail check to cover charges of technical violations of the traffic laws. And in addition to this it will also be necessary to appoint men to these offices who have enough judgment and common sense to use discretion in enforcing the traffic regulations

THE NEW WAY OF DOING IT

—o—

In 1868 Nicholas M Bell stood on the platform in Tammany Hall and placed in nomination Horatio Seymour as Democratic candidate for president

"I was 26 years old at the time," Bell reminisces "I had not in dare to get to New York from Salem Oregon, where I was a merchant"

Bell has lived to see an American in a steel flying machine cross the continent between dawn and darkness of one day. Quite a contrast with making it in a month

You will see similar startling changes if you live as long as Bell Speed is our generation's goal Contentment was more the goal when Bell crossed the continent in 1868. Of course, he'd have gone faster if he could.

Time is a quicksand, swallowing everything. America's oldest shoe shop passes out of existence—the famous boot and shoemaking factory founded by James Benedict in Connecticutt in 1762, and conducted for generations by his descendants.

Benedict's New Canaan shoes were famous all over the country. They were hand-made and sold at wholesale as high as $8 33 a pair, before the Civil War, back when prices were low.

About 30 years ago machine competition began to prove too much for hand-made footwear. The Benedicts held on. Now they quit, go out of business.

Machinery is displacing the skill of human hads. And along this line, it has barely started. We are not far beyond the beginning of the Machine Age. But, each year, more and more things are done by machinery.

This puts hand workers out of jobs. But the final result is that they are released for other kinds of production.

By this process the standard of living steadily advances—machinery releasing human labor for the production of a fast-increasing number of devices for popular use.

You use hundreds of times as many articles as your grandfather used—and consider them as necessities. For this, thank the monster known as the machine.

Everything has its price. The machine raises the average standard of living. Its penalty is in the way it is enslaving us.

In making shoes, crossing the continent, and thousands of other htings, we observe great progress. But most of our progress is mechanical. The more important progress, spiritual, lags.

The one bright hope in this vale of tears, has been that death would relieve a man of all of his troubles so far as this world is concerned. Now the law makers are considering collecting poll tax from the corpse, in the event that this tax is in arrears when they cash in. Ye Gods! What next?

TOO MUCH RAIN IN DRY FORK SECTION

—o—

DRY FORK, July 12 — There has actually been too much rain in this section for the past two weeks. The growing crops seem to be suffering as much or more from it than they would from dry weather. The tobacco is looking a little sickly, but the corn has not been hurt, except on low-grounds and exceedingly wet natured land Many of the farmers seem to feel quite uneasy, but if the season would be good from now on there has not been enough damage to amount to much.

The wheat crop has been greatly damaged already and will be damaged considerably more, unless the weather clears up very soon A great portion of it has sprouted in the shock, which will cause it to make very poor bread.

Co-op Meeting

The co-ops of the Dry Fork local held one of the best meetings last night that they have had for some time There was a good number present and everybody seemed to have taken much interest in the meeting There were several good talks, Rev. J T. Owen being the chief speaker and the spirit of co-operation seemed to have been aroused more than before

Some of the farmers had begun to feel a little easy about the second payment, but showed signs of feeling better after having matters properly explained

TO CATCH A THIEF

"TO CATCH A THIEF"

—o—

It occurs to me that, for reasons which should be obvious enough, it will be as well if, in these memoirs of mine, I refrain from attempting to set forth my adventures in their chronological order. All policemen are not fools; if I should trace, with too great exactitude, my various movements, dormant suspicions would become wakeful. Moreover, it is not my intention to publish all my adventures. I prefer rather to confine myself to those incidents which have in them something of the unusual In presenting the history of an artist, one does not deem it essential to relate where he purchased his brushes. And I am an artist.

Behold me, then, seated at a table on the terrace of the Cafe de Paris, sipping my coffee. It was the atrocious decoction, rather, which the French call coffee. It is, this coffee, the only blemish upon an otherwise charming people. And I will confess, with what hesitation may seem suitable to the prejudices of the day, that I had mitigated its bitterness with some fin champagne. Moreover, I had dined at Ciro's, and nothing could efface the memory of that marvelous repast.

The air was balmy. The tables were crowded. It seemed as if all the world had run away from his wife and brought his sweetheart here. For there was an air of excitement, of careless gayety, that unfortunately is not too closely associated with respectable domesticity. I could hear every tongue, save German, spoken; and I strongly suspected that the guttural French essayed by certain ostensible Swiss had been learned in Berlin. For though the German is not given, even at this time in the world's history, to denying his nationality, Monte Carlo is worth a transient treason.

For a moment I felt lonely. I wished that I, too, were accompanied by a charming lady into whose ears I could whisper soft flatteries, and into whose hands, later on, I could press the inlaid plaques wherewith one stakes at roulette or chemin de fer. But I put the thought from me. The artist in crime must be like Kipling's cat, he walks alone

And in moments such as these, when I realize that certain things are denied me, I seek for change, for relaxation. And before me, outlined in electric lights, and shone cynically upon by the scornful stars above, loomed the great bulk of the Casino. Excitement was not far to seek.

I raised my finger; my waiter came to my side and presented the small bill.

"Monsieur plays?" he smiled.

"One feels gratitude to the authors of these glorious surroundings," I told him. "One does not play; one enters the Casino and pays for the privilege of being here."

The waiter's smile was swiftly sympathetic. "Monsieur is unfortunate?"

I shrugged. "Does anyone ever win here?" I asked.

"Ah, yes, monsieur. The good luck smiles on many," he assured me.

"I'll believe it when I see it," I retorted.

"Then Monsieur would be well advised if he watched the play of the Baronne d'Esterelle this evening Her luck has been phenomenal for the past week I know, for one of my cousins is a croupier, and he has told me. If Monsieur will note the lady, at the second table to the right, he will see her."

I followed the direction of his glance Of course the Baronne d'Esterelle would be fortunate at games of chance God had given her neither beauty nor charm; she was a grossly overfed woman, who radiated vulgarity; I suppose it is only fair that such persons, devoid of all other gifts, should be lucky I felt an instant desire to relieve her of some of the priceless baubles that, beautiful in themselves, pitilessly contrasted with her own ugliness

"So the little god smiles on her!" I said to the waiter

"Luck, like love, is blind, monsieur," he replied I like the French Even their lower classes are deft of speech

I looked at him "You recommend the Baronne's good fortune to me, and yet that fortune does not seem to please you."

Had we been anywhere else, I think he would have spat upon the ground. "I gave two sons to France, monsieur," he said "The Baronne gave none. Her owns were occupied in the production of munitions France has her profiteers, monsieur Those jewels which she wears were bought with money made in the war Ah, well she has one jewel less than she had last week The luck frowns even as it smiles"

She lost a jewel" I asked

He spread his palms and pursed his lips "Who knows? Monsieur does not read French, perhaps Our newspapers printed much about the Baronne's pearl necklace She wore it one night at the Casino She went back to her hotel without it The police say that detective from Paris are investigating the matter. The clasp had become unfastened, it is supposed, and the necklace dropped to the floor But Monsieur is aware that strange people come to Monte Carlo Bonne chance, monsieur!"

I tipped him and with my coat over my arm I strolled across the square to the Casino At last I walked! He said As the waiter had said strange people came to Monte Carlo I would like to meet that strange one who had taken the Baronne's necklace It took genius to [illegible] it quickly [illegible] a woman [illegible] in the halls of the Casino. And I was grateful to the garrulous little waiter. I had come to the Riviera for rest, with no intention of practicing my profession. Now, forewarned, I would not, no matter what the temptation, permit my holiday to be infringed upon by business. The Parisian detectives have brains.

Still, as I checked my hat and coat, and sauntered through the outer rooms into the Cercle Prive, the more exclusive salons, and beheld the precious stones that gleamed from the throats and arms and hair of the women here, I could understand that not even the Casino's force of detectives, or the importations from Paris, could deter attempts at theft. Also I speculated on the difficulties that might be involved in a raid upon the cash of the Casino itself. But that was a job for an organization. And I, as I have said before, walk alone.

I went to a booth and exchanged half a dozen mille notes for chips. Then I slipped into a vacant seat at one of the tables, glanced at a card kept by the man next to me, saw that red had been turning up with great frequency, decided that it was black's turn, and began backing up my judgment. I had made three successful coups, when an exclamation from my left-hand neighbor made me turn and look at her.

She was well worth the glance I gave her. I have seen few lovelier women than this young American—she was patently that—who sat beside me. Black hair and blue eyes lent to her an exotic air that was enhanced by the olive hue of her skin. I judged that in her ancestry might be found some grandee of old Spain. She was dressed prettily, but not nearly as expensively as most of the other women present. And she wore no jewelry whatsoever, save a narrow gold wedding-ring Nevertheless she was the most striking-looking woman in the room.

But it was not her beauty alone that made me stare at her It was the expression of despair upon her face. Her exclamation had been one of almost hysterical dismay. Beyond her sat a youth of twenty-five, good-looking, with that fresh complexion so common to the English. His color was more florid just now than usual. I imagined. For he was crimson with embarrassment at his wife's cry. As I looked, he placed a hand upon her wrist. It was this action that made me assume they were husband and wife.

"Don't, Margaret," he said to her "We'll get it back in a moment." As he spoke, he placed plaques aggregating six thousand francs, on the red.

"Jack, you mustn't! Take it back!" She was frantic in her pleading.

Behind her stood a tall, black-bearded man, broad-shouldered and powerful. His huge nose, mottled skin and pouched eyes told of a man who knew no restrain upon his desires. He leaned over now.

"But what does it matter, Mrs. Beresford?" His accent told me that he was Russian.

"It matters tremendously," she replied angrily. And then the croupier droned his cry as the little ball settled into Number Eleven.

"Onze, impair, noir et manque" Eleven, odd, black, and the first eighteen His cry was music to my ears, for I had staked two thousand on the black. But as I reached for my winnings, I wished that red had come. For I was near neighbor to one of those all-too-common tragedies of Monte Carlo, the proofs of which are to be found in the defalcations, forgeries and embezzlements that fill the Continental papers, and in the hush-up-suicides of the cliffs.

"How can it matter?" demanded the Russian. "I am here, and I have money."

She flashed a look of scorn at him. I could read the little story as easily as if it were set before my eyes in print I have seen too many elderly gentlemen befriending young wives.

She rose from her seat. "Come, Jack," she said.

Her husband looked at her in desperate appeal. "That's all we have, Margaret," he told her. "Unless the Prince lends money, we have nothing."

Horror leaped into her eyes. he looked accusingly at the prince. "You encouraged Jack."

NEW MEANING GIVEN TO WORD "ALABAMA"

—o—

MONTGOMERY, Ala., July 12.—Popular belief that "Alabama," translated from the tribal In dian tongue, means "Here we rest" has been dealt a jolt under the light of philogical research.

This more pleasing translation, according to the 1923 issue of the Alabama Official and Statistical Register just off the press or ginated during the early fifties and gained widespread popularity through the writings, of Judge A. B. Meek.

"Alabama" was the name of a noted Southern tribe of Indians, whose habitant was in what is now Central Alabama, the Register says. The largest river of this territory was named after the Alabama Indians and the state derived it sname from the river.

Recent investigations have brought forth an agreement between two prominent students of Indian dialects, the paper says. The Rev. Allen Wright, a highly educated Choctaw, translates the word to signify "thicket-clearners." His opinion is that the word is compounded from "Alba," meaning a thicket, or mass of vegetation, and "amo," meaning a clear, or to gather up.

H S Halbert, another student of tribal dialects, concurs in this belief, giving a slightly different translation, "vegetation-gathers."

Compared with the heretofore readily accepted translation of "here we rest, the Register says, this latest etymology may be regarded a trifle prosaic, but, it reasons, it more nearly represents the character of Alabamians of today and of the past who have depended upon their labor with the soil for livelihood

Diabetes On Increase.

Within recent years diabetes has become one of the most prevalent diseases. Not only does it take the lives of a large number of people but the individual who has it lasts a long time and during much of the period is considerably incapacitated. Robert Louis Stevenson did his best work during years when he was actively tuberculous. Julius Caesar was an epileptic when he conquered worlds, as was Mahomet when he founded a religion. Altgeld had locomotor ataxia when he served as governor—but if any man has ever accomplished a supertask while suffering from diabetes I have not seen record of it.

A diabetic, in order to keep sugar free, must eat sparingly, and most persons who accomplish much are "good feeders." Diabetes has become a great health problem. Dr. Haven Emerson thinks changes in our habits and customs is the principal cause. We eat and drink enormous quantities of sweets. Our annual per capits and customs is the principal cause. as we became sugar hounds we took a notion to stop muscle work. A man can eat a lot of sugar and survive, provided he will work ten hours splitting rails or carrying a hod. Our plan now is to work six hours a day instead of eight; to get on with wire fences, instead of splitting rails; to pour mortar through a sluice, instead of carrying hods, and by changes such as these to liberate our two hands that they may life sweet things to our mouths.

The Jews are the heaviest sufferers from diabeter, because they have the sweetest tooth and they maul the fewest rails. The Irish are next in the diabetes list because they have quit red flannel shirts and hard work and have become easy going plutocrats. The negro, still at the bottom of the list, is rapidly becoming diabetic as he learns how to cop off easy jobs and to live on pie and pastry.

* * *

One reason for the increasing importance of diabetes is the increase in obesity. In the discussion of Dr. Emerson's paper, Dr. Fisk of the Life Extension institute said all fat people should have periodic examinations of their blood for blood sugar. Otherwise they would find themselves advanced diabetics before they suspected it.

One reason for the increased prevalence of diabetes is hte increase in the number of people over 50 years of age. Peopl eearn their diabetes, and the rule is that more than 50 years is required for the job.

Iwore those casts at the age of 22. At the age of 34 I married and have had five boys, three of whom are healthy specimens of boyhood. The other two died in infancy of natural causes. HISTORY OF AMERICAN LEGION IN VIRGINIA, DANVILLE POST

(By George P. Geoghegan, Jr.)

In all the land no American Legion Post has had a more patriotic background for its organization efforts than that of Danville, Virginia. Favored above most American cities by being located in a sectio nwhere the Anglo-Saxon strain is purest, its populace contains practically no aliens. Such citizens of foreign birth as are located here are naturalized almost without exception. As a consequence of this condition a patriotic fervor pervaded Danville almost from the day war was declared on Germany—in fact, it is recorded that on that very day certain youthful citizens voluntarily entered the military service and in the immediately following weeks, scores hastened to affiliate with local National Guard units, of which there were three with total enlistments of 424. Enthusiasm was not limited to those of military age, or the stronger sex. The whole town responded. Its allotment of the First Liberty Loan was oversubscribed by thousands of dollars, and in the drive that followed Danville never failed of its quota.

Hundreds of young men of the city and countryside responded readily and willingly to selective service when their names were called, and we assert that few cities of the country can show a larger number of men furnished the armed forces than Danville, in proportion to population. Conspicuous service was rendered by the Danville military units in the fighting areas of St. Mihiel, the Meuse-Argonne, Malbrouck Hill and Etrave Ridge, while scattered through various divisions of the expeditionary forces, hundreds of other Danville men bore the scourge of war on all the fronts of battle.

In June, 1919, when most of those in service had returned, a great home-coming celebration was held, in which the people of Danville were hosts, and honor was done its heroes. About this time the call came for the formation of local American Legion posts, and met a ready response among the lads, struggling to gain a foothold in peace-time pursuits, yet desiring to preserve the memories and incidents of their association in the great war. The Danville Post was formed at a meeting held in the Municipal building in June, 1919, with 50 present. Officers were elected and a charter applied for. This wa sfollowed by an active campaign for members, and the roster increased rapidly until the end of the year 1919, showed 244 on the roll. The officers who have served from its organization to the date of this writing are as follows:

1919—Commander, A. K. Raine (2 months), Adjutant, G. P. Geoghegan, Jr.

1919—Commander A. M. Aiken Adjutant, G. P. Geoghegan, Jr.

1920—Commander H. A. Wiseman, Adjutant, Geo. S. Ramey.

1921—Commander, H. T. Williams, Adjutant, A. R. Gravely.

1922—Commander, J. M. Robinson (2 months) Adjutant, F. W. Townes, Jr.

1922—Commander, G. W. Johnson, Adjutant, H. T. Williams.

1923—Commader, W. H. Cousins, Adjutant J. Landon Robertson.

1924—Commander W. H. Cousins Adjutant, Thomas A. Fox, Jr.

The fluctuation in the membership of the Post furnishes an interesting study, reflecting the struggles of the organization to find its bearings and determine its field of usefulness. The annual paid up memberships have been as follows:

During the life of the post a number of activities have been undertaken and carried through, among which attention will be first called to the fact that the body whichof to the fact that the body of every man who died in service was given a military burial upon its return, and flowers sent by the post rested on his casket during the funeral services. During periods of depression, especially the winter of 1921-1922, much relief work was done, and many men in town "down but not out" were sent to their homes, or employment found for them. Only the officers of the Legion have any idea of the number of calls made upon the Post by men temporarily without means. The treasury was drained of all funds. The membership fees are small, and in order to care for this type of work the post arranged a carnival, and later a comedy in the form of a "Womanless Wedding," from both of which goodly sums were realized, and later expended in caring for our unfortunate comrades.

Our post adjutants and service officers have handled a larger number of claims of veterans, and have been instrumental in securing disability compensation, vocational training reinstatement of goverment insurance and other adjustments for ex-service men. Insurance claims have been handled for widows and dependents of those who died, or were killed in service, and this phase of work alone would justify the Legion's existence in Danville. The Post has held monthly meetings which are well attended and often featured by addresses by prominent speakers on subjects of interest and importance to Legionnaires Boxing, wrestling and athletics have been encouraged and many good bouts witnessed at post meetings.

In 1923 there was held in Danville the fifth district of Virginia convention of the American Legion, represented by posts holding membership in this district, at which the State Commander, Col. E. E. Goodwyn, was present. This convention went on record as favoring Danville for the 1924 State Convention. The local post followed this up by sending a very strong delegation to the 1923 Fredericksburg convention, with representatives of the Chamber of Commerce and other civic clubs, who presented such forceful argument, that the 1924 convention was awarded to Danville, and at the time of this writing the local post is making active preparations for the accommodation of the gathering, and its entertainment. One of the speakers will be General John J. Pershing. Another, Dr. Kate Waller Barrett, past president of the National American Legion Auxiliary.

Danville has one of the most impressive memorials to its dead in the great war to be found anywhere. Beautiful Mount Vernon and Virginia avenues were selected as the sites for planting a living tree to the memory of each soldier, these trees being placed in the parkway extending the length of the street, and each one being permanently identified with a bronze marker, bearing the name of the veteran. This tribute was provided by the Kiwanis club. Other civic organizations and the Chamber of Commerce of Danville, have already shown a sympathetic interest in the American Legion Post and relations have been of a cordial nature.

The Post commander has outlined a program of work ahead of the Danville Post, and states that he will undertake to get the post started on some of the activities and recommend other activities for his successor in command. Among these he named thetinued assistance of the veteran in every way possible, citing the present work of aiding from 30 to 60 service men daily in making out their adjusted compensation claims, and the solid backing the post is giving in efforts to see that men with just claims for disability receive their due. The Post will continue its activity in fostering patriotism and will undertake to see that important national days were fittingly celebrated so that there will never again be hyphenated-Americans. And the big thing which will go over into another year's activity will be the launching of a movement to secure permanent quarters for the post, including perhaps facilities for a public library. At present the post is using quarters in the Confederate Memorial Mansion, kindly placed at its disposal by the city council.

But the big thing before Danville Post at present is putting over the 1924 State Convention and with the assistance of its newly formed Auxiliary, the Chamber of Commerce and to give the delegates attending the 1924 convention "a maximum of entertainment for a minimum of expense to the delegate."

PROCLAMATION REGARDING EMPLOYMENT OF VETERANS

Whereas, the American Legion has advised me that over one hundred Virginians who were disabled in the World war have recently completed their course of vocational training by which they have become well fitted to discharge with necessary skill the duties of a large variety of occupations including agricultural, commercial, professional and general industrial vocations; and

Whereas, these disabled veterans are deserving of every encouragement in their courageous effort to make of themselves self-supporting and productive factors in our every day life; and

Whereas, failure to secure appropriate employment would mean that the years of painstaking effort devoted by these disabled veterans in vocational training and also the thousands of dollars expended by the government in their rehabilitation would all be a total loss.

Now, therefore, I, E. Lee Trinkle, governor of Virginia, do hereby place this matter before the business men and all employers in the state of Virginia, and hereby earnestly call upon them to do everything possible to afford employment, for these rehabilitated veterans (whose physical disability gives permanent testimony to what they have done for us), and to assist in every way possible the American Legion and the Veterans' bureau in their praiseworthy efforts to secure appropriate employment for these veterans.

Given under my hand and under the lesser seal of the commonwealth this eleventh day of July, in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and twenty-four, and in the one hundred and forty-eighth year of the commonwealth.

(Signed) E. Lee Trinkle, governor.

LIONS CLUB TO MEET AT KENTUCK WEDNESDAY

The Danville Lions plan to invade the country next week and eat of some of the chickens in the Kentuck neighborhood.

Following a plan proposed by the new officers, it has been decided to hold occasional meetings in the surrounding farming sections, thus taking the city to the country and giving the members a chance to get a breath of fresh air and the privilege of mingling with their rural friends.

The supper on Wednesday night will be served by one of the ladies' societies of the Kentuck neighborhood, and farmers of that community will be guests of the Lions' Club.

At a recent meeting of the directors, $25.00 was appropriated for the relief of the Lorain (Ohio) sufferers, and this amount was forwarded to the Red Cross at Lorain.

3 PRISONERS ESCAPE FROM WINSTON JAIL

WINSTON-SALEM, N. C., July 12.—Breaking a bar to their cell, climbing through a window to drop to a roof below and then to the ground, three prisoners in the city lock-up made their escape about 9 o'clock tonight. One of them returned within a few minutes and surrendered to the officers, but the other two have not yet been located.

The men escaping were Howard Scott Wells, arrested this morning on charges of housebreaking, larceny and receiving, who returned after going across the street and securing some cigarettes and matches; Joe Mitchell, convicted this morning of failing to pay board bill, speeding, and failing to pay auto hire, and Sam Campbell, charged with speeding.

Noises made by the men were heard by the night turnkey who immediately gave the alarm, and officers were sent in pursuit, but at 10:30 o'clock no trace of the two who continued flight had been found.

CITY TOBACCO CROP IS NOW LOOKING VERY FINE

While reports from the tobacco crop in the Old Belt and in eastern Carolina are very discouraging as to the outlook, owing to the continued and destructive rains, R. W. Jones, Danville agent of the Southern railway, has a crop which in quality will compare with the best at this stage of the season. It may be seen growing just west of the freight depot where Mr. Jones has his office. If the quantity equalled the quality, Mr. Jones would be greatly benefited.

Co-Ops Will Make Another Payment

RALEIGH, N. C., July 12.—A payment of two million three hundred thousand dollars will be made by the Tobacco Growers Cooperative Association on or before July 26 to its members in the old belt of Virginia and North Carolina who delivered bright tobacco of the 1923 crop to their cooperative warehouses.

Officials of the association announced today that they are following their policy of paying association members as rapidly as possible, that instead of waiting for sufficient money to accumulate from sales of re-dried tobaccos to enable them to make a payment equal to 25 per cent. of the bankers valuation of 1923 deliveries they would pay to the members of the association $2,300,000 as as soon as the checks could be made out and distributed.

Richard R. Patterson, general manager of the tobacco association stated that he had hoped to make sufficient sales to permit all old belt members of the association to receive a payment equal to 50 per cent. of their first advance, this month but due to delay in completing several important transactions with association customers he felt that the association could not afford to keep $2,300,000 but of the hands of the members at this time. Mr. Patterson states that he expects several important sales to be completed in a short time.

Directors of the association state that it is their expectation that another payments of $2,300,000 will be made to the organized growers of Western North Carolina and the Virginia bright tobasco area in the near future.

This month's payment of $2,300,000 will equal 12½ per cent. of the bankers valuation of the deliveries of old belt members to their warehouses and will affect approximately 50,000 tobahro farmers all the way from Hamlet, N. C., to the most northern bright tobacco markets of Virginia.

Steady sales of the association stocks of olb belt tobacco are being made according to general manager Patterson, and the present unavoidable season for the growing crop of tobacco is resulting in a very acive interest on the part of manufacturers and dealers in the stocks of re-dried tobaccos now in the hands of the organized growers.

GETTING TOGETHER TO ENTERTAIN LEGIONAIRES

The State Convention of the American Legion is claiming the attention of the citizens of Danville and the suburban districts. The delegates will come into contact with the business and social life of the city. Purchases made in entertaining the Legionaires will touch the interests of practically every business in the city. Those who attend the convention will be the medium through whom a dissemination of our good will to all parts of the State of Virginia is going to be effected. Hearty and intelligent co-operation between the citizens and delegates is expected to result in much mutual and practical benefit. Plans to foster this feeling are already well matured.

The people of this city will thus have opportunity to show "Our Boys" we still appreciate them and the ideals for which they stand. During the days of the Great War, everyone mounted the heights of sacrifice and selfish striving. These efforts harmonized in the achievement of one great end—Victory. Many have cherished he hope that the glow of patriotic accomplishments might not fade, but the clamor of Armistice Day had hardly subsided when everybody seemed to return to the status of "every man for himself."

OPERATION IS ONLY HOPE FOR POOLE

RICHMOND, Va., July 12.—Physicians and surgeons of a local hospital are trying to "patch up" Thomas G. Poole so he can meet the demands of justice by serving a fifteen-year sentence in the state penitentiary.

The prisoner was brought into the courtroom Wednesday on a stretcher. He pleaded guilty to charges of embezzlement of more than $160,000 from a Halifax county bank and received his sentence. The defense asked for a suspension of sentence on the peal of the moral effect auch action by the judge would have upon the prisoner, but Commonwealth Attorney Easley opposed the petition and was upheld by the bench.

Poole can live only a few months, according to physicians, unless an operation is performed and results successfully. He is said to be suffering with tuberculosis and a complication of diseases. Since Farch, he has lost thirty-five pounds and surgeons said they were awaiting a possible recovery in his strength before operating.

Whether or not Poole will remain in the local hospital or be removed to the Memorial hospital, at which penitentiary patients are treated, will be decided by the prison board at an early meeting. While Poole is awaiting the decision of the board he is remaining in his hospital where he has been under treatment for several weeks. Halifax authorities agreed to this arrangement.

The confessed embezzler was to have been tried in Halifax, but his condition resulted in a change of venue to the Richmond court. Before the Halifax authorities agreed to the change, they took legal steps to have Poole removed to their county. Upon being satisfied that the man's condition would not permit removal, they immediately consented to the change. He was brought in the local courtroom over the informel protest of local officials and after defense attorneys had attempted to have the case heard at the hospital.

DAN RIVER T. G. A. MEETS AT ROXBORO

Dan River District T. G. A. met at Roxboro July 10 with the largest attendance of any held in this district. The auditorium was taxed to its capacity and the doors and windows were filled. The meeting was called to order by Vice President J. H. Warren. Prayer was offered by J. R. Hodnett. The minutes of the last meeting and secretary's report were approved. Business being disposed of Chairman Warren introduced W. R. West, director, of Henry county. Mr. West asked those who thought cooperative marketing was dead to look at the large number of farmers present. County Demonstrator Gordan Elean was called on and he responded with an interesting address. Messrs. A. E. Garrett, E. L. Walton, of Danville, Robert Carter, Chatham District, and Charlie Lea spoke with much enthusiasm. Chairman Warren expressed in warm terms his pleasure in the very large attendance that Dan River is having at its district meetings. The next meeting will be held with Dixie Local, near Blair's Store, Thursday, August 14.

BRUNSWICK CLUB HOLD ANNUAL CAMP

Brunswick county 4-H clubs will hold their annual camp and short course at the Westward Mill on Meherrin river from July 15 to 19. The project is being materially assisted by the state extension division. Courses of instruction will be given by leaders. The camp site is about eight miles from Lawrenceville and visitors will be welcomed.

It is stated that at previous camps 75 boys and girls have been enrolled in addition to the 15 instructors, chaperons, and helpers. The location is ideal for the camp, stated John B. Lewis, county agent. He adds that this camp and short course is enjoyed not only by the boys and girls but by the older people of the county as well. Several hundred visit the camp each year to hear the lectures and enjoy the sports.

Nature study will occupy a period each day. Katherine H. Stuart, Alexandria, an experienced teacher of ornithology, will have charge of this class.

Tents and cots have been furnished by the state extension division, and specialist from the division will give instruction in agriculture and home economics.

IN choosing furniture, the question is not so much that you pay a little more for what is worthy, but that you get so much less than what you pay for when you buy any other kind. No price can measure the satisfaction of quality furniture. Any price is too much to pay for inferior furniture. The real saving must be reckoned in years of service.

Follow the Roads to Craghead Street

The Shopping Center---Out of the High Rent District.

With the finish of the paving of Craghead street, now nearing completion that important artery of trade and commerce will again buzz with the hum of business and merchants and business houses that have been inconvenienced for a short time while the project was under construction are now enjoying the benefits of a smooth surface, modern pavement rapidly constructed with the minimum of delay.

Craghead street in days gone by, in maritime lingo was the port of entry to Danville, nevertheless was congested with the gentry that imbibed in the spirits that cheered and saddened. That was yesterday. Today Craghead street bids fair to become one of Danville's principal business streets, for already many improvements are under way that make it an ideal retail as well as a wholesale center.

Danville's largest automobile concerns are located on Craghead street. Wholesale houses, machine shops, tobacco warehouses, all go to swell Craghead Street and when the Fall comes the real congestion is found here.

The paving of Craghead Street was expeditiously handled by Laramore Brothers, who have made a reputation here for speed and thoroughness seldom equalled. With a minimum of delay a block at a time was so rapidly completed that before there was time for complaint the street was again open to traffic. The thoroughness and dispatch in which this concern went about the big paving job has elicited most favorable comment and to everyone the surprise is agreeable.

Merchants whose ads appear on this page are live wires on Craghead Street. They believe in Craghead Street, in Danville, they want you to drive down, park in front of their places, make Craghead street your shopping center. No parking restrictions, plenty of room. Watch Craghead Street.

BIG BILL COMES TO GRIEF IN CANAL

CHICAGO July 12 —The good ship "Big Bill," owned by former Mayor Thompson, of Chicago, and which started out two days ago to make a trip around the world, has already come to grief It is fast aground in the mud in the drainage canal off the coast of Morris, Ill., seventy miles from its starting point

"Big Bill" himself was at the wheel and in rounding a curve he missed the canal and the boat refused to navigate on land Edgar Srofis, formerly on the staff of General Overseer Volive of Zion City, one of the strangely assorted crew, waded ashore with the news Capt A J Duken, skipper of the ketch, and discoverer of the fish which barks like a dog and climbs trees somewhere in the South Sea Islands, had gone ashore to try railroad travel for a change and as soon as he had gone over the side, the ketch began to experience trouble with leaky pipes and then the big mud bank. When it rains hard enough the journey to Borneo will be resumed The main object of the expedition is to bring back the tree climbing fish and some members of a peculiar and hitherto unknown tribe of people discovered by Skipper Dukes.

"Cut her down lean!"

"NINETY per cent of cars run right along on too fat a mixture," says the Fleet Boss. "Adjust your carburetor to a leaner mixture and you'll get more pick-up and power. You'll get less dilution of crank case oil, less carbon and more mileage. Your motor will stay in better condition. Sure, a rich mixture will start you quicker, but you pay too much all day long for the seconds you save, and your rich mixture leaves a stinking exhaust that makes folks hate to see you coming. Cut her down lean!"

At least ninety per cent of motorists are careless also about buying motor oil by brand. But not experienced fleet superintendents. Most of them pick one brand by practical operating test and stick to it. It may surprise the average motorist to know that the percentage of commercial fleets using "Standard" Polarine exclusively is much higher than that of private cars.

By MARGARET PLUNKETT

One who has been under water for 30 minutes can be revived under proper treatment

There have been many instances where persons under water for an even longer time have been resuscitated.

But no time must be wasted.

Place the body downhill, if possible. Put the head to one side. Put both of the hands forward, placing one under the mouth and nose of the body to keep out dirt.

Bend over the body and place your hands along the lower ribs.

Press downward and forward—slowly

Release your grasp suddenly.

Repeat this movement continually; the method will not be tiring.

The downward pressure should occupy about three seconds, while two seconds should elapse between each movement.

SUPERIOR PITCHING OF THOMPSON AS A RELIEF PITCHER WON FOR TWINS

Danville dropped the final game with Winston-Salem yesterday, losing by 5 to 7, chiefly through the masterly pitching of Thompson, relief hurler for the Twins.

Taking up the box-work in the sixth inning, with one man on and none out, Thompson yielded one hit and a sacrifice, then retired the Champions in order. In the seventh he showed his stuff, truly. Myers, Cochlin and Wilson, all hard men to pitch to, were whiffed in succession. More than that in the 8th the stocky, steady moundsman continued his record by fanning Shoaf and Trefry. Staley, who led the team's batting for the day, ended the strike-out series with a hit to right center, but Regan grounded to Waldron for the third out. The visiting pitcher opened the usually dangerous Danville ninth by striking out the redoubtable McDonald. Resco, on whom local hopes were fastened, swung hard at the elusive ball, but sent up a high infield fly which Inman squeezed, and Myers gave Waldron a put-out to close the game.

Fortune smiled alternately on the two teams McWhirter, usually stingy with hits and miserly with long drives, got away with the opening inning nicely. In the second, with one away, Pitcher Smith, who began the box work for the Twins, hit the ball out of the lot, and Catcher Hamby followed with an exact duplicate of the drive, the two proving that they were a battery indeed. In th fourth inning, Smith, who had had time to recuperate from his circuit of the sacks, added insult to injury by repeating the circuit-slamming stunt, and Hamby also made a try, which was good for a single.

Meanwhile Danville in the third had overcome the visitors' two-run lead and gone them one beter. A single by Staley, who was thrown out trying to make the blow good for two bases, opened and Regan was down on his bounder to Waldron. McDonald's third strike was a bit wide and got by Hamby, the batsman reaching the first safety spot Resco came through with a hit to right,and then Karli Myers surprised and delight the fans by lifting the ball over left field fence Cochlin followed with a single, but Ernst whiffed to end the rally.

In their fourth inning the visitors knotted the count on Smith's second homer, as aforesaid. The score was tied in a slip-not, however, and the Twins easily slipped it when McWhirter began slipping in the fifth Inman gave Regan a put out, but Mahoney hit safely to left, Long rapped one to center, Jackson slapped another into right, and Waldron singled to center Mahoney had scored on Waldron's drive, and Long also tried to register, but was caught easily at the plate on Regan's fine throw Ernst had Long by four feet, and it seemed a very unnecessary thing to do, but Long continued and ran into Ernst so hard as to bowl him over and knock him breathless for a while He soon recovered sufficiently to resume play, but at the end of the inning when his turn at bat came Wilson was sent in to hit for him. However, to return to the incident. Ernst clung to the ball and Long was out.

After Waldrons' hit, the fourth successive single off McWhirter, the boxman was displaced by Shoaf. Standeart singled to center, but Regan, who came in fast for the ball in order to make a play at the plate, let it get through him, and Jackson and Waldron both scored Shoaf fanned Smith for the final out of the fatal inning.

Danville came back in its fifth turn at bat and scored two runs, one shy of tying the Twins. Smith tossed Regan out, but McDonald singled and advanced a base on Hamby's passed ball, as he would have done a moment later on a base on balls for Resco Myers clouted a long single to left on which McDonald and Resco scored

There was no scoring in the sixth although Danville had a fine chance Trefry opened with a single to left whereupon Manager Jackson sent Smith to right field to displace Sigman and chose Thompson as relief pitcher. Staley, the first man to face Thompson, singled to center, and Regan laid down a bunt, advancing both runners. With one out and runners on third and second, it looked promising for Danville Thompson, however, forced McDonald to ground to Waldron and Resco to send up a high fly which Standeart came in and took After that there was nothing to the game but Thompson, for he was master of the locals batsmen at every moment. His brilliant pitching had saved the day for Winston.

It was a beautifully contested game, but the Twins deserved their victory on their work in box, at bat and in the field. No sensational plays were made and the errors really cost little, except Regan's excusable one when he let Standeart's hard line drive get by in coming in fast for the ball in an effort to cut off Waldron at the plate. The two visiting hurlers struck out eleven Danville batsmen in the nine innings. Smith having whiffed five in the first four innings and Thompson six in the final four.

The Danville team leaves Monday for Durham to play the Bulls for the next series and, thence to Winston to return their visit, thus leaving Danville without a league game for the week.

"SLATS" LEDBETTER'S SLOW BALL RUINS PATRIOTS

GREENSBORO, July 12.— Old "Slats" Ledbetter won his second victory flor Durham this afternoon, when he let the Patriots down with only four scatered hits. The score was 6 to 1. Ledbetter had the Patriots at his mercy with his easy floaters. Greensboro managed to send only one run across, that coming in the fifth, while Durham bunched hits and coupled with errors in the early part of the game made half a dozen tallies. They were held scoreless after the fifth. Smith hit two times for the circuit. The second was declared to be a foul by several feet by practically all the fans but Umpire Osborne ruled that it went out of his scight in safe territory and declined to change his decision despite much protest and violent threats on the part of the fans. So arouse did the spectators become that three patrolmen as a measure of precaution escorted Osborne when he left the park. This proved not to be necessary, however, as no signs of an attack were seen at the time. The box score follows:

POINTERS SWEEP SERIES WITH RALEIG HOUTFIT

RALEIGH, July 12.—The Furniture Makers made a clean sweep of the series and Raleigh lost her fifth consecutive game here this afternoon by the score of 4 to 2. High Point's first run resulted from an error but the other three were results of the stick, Elliott being touched for ten safeties, while Lefty Rube Eldridge was holding the locals to six scattered hits The only two runs of the Caps came in the eighth inning. Umpire Sabrie called Herndon safe at first when everybody else saw him out by at least two feet and at the end of the game a crowd of angry fans swarmed out onto the field and quite a number escorted him to the dugout but no attack was attempted and in a few minutes all was calm again. Johnson had a busy day at the hot corner, having an even dozen chances, handling them all without bobbie The box score follows:

NEW CONTESTS BEGIN IN PARIS, AMERICA WINNER IN TRACK-FIELD EVENTS

(By The Associated Press.)

PARIS, July 14.—Miss Lillian Sharman of New York, was today eliminated in the second round of the women's Olympic tennis singles by the young Spanish star, Senarita Tivarez, whose fine forehand driving and stiff pace gave her a decisive victory by the score of 6-2, 6-0.

In the first round of the men's doubles the Torralava brothers of Chile defeated Roman and Luppo of Rumania in straight sets, 7-5, 6-2, 6-3. Vincent Richrads and Francis T. Hunter, America, advanced to the second round by the default of Mishu and Stern of Rumania.

Watson M Washburn, like Williams, had little trouble in reaching the third round. Plugging away at a steady conservative pace, he defeated the Rumania, Luppu, 6-2, 6-2, 6-4. It is not expected that Williams will have any trouble with his next match, which will be with MacNenauerr of Czecho Slovakia.

Mrs. Molla Mallory, representing Norway, defeated Mme. Vaussard of France, 6-2, 6-2

R. Norris Williams 2nd, had no difficulty in eliminating his first opponent, S M Hadi of India, 6-0; 6-2, 6-1.

Mrs. Satterthwaite, the English player, won her first round match by default from an Italian entrant She will meet Miss Helen Wills, the American woman champion tomorrow. Miss Wills defeated Mrs Sattertwaite in the sem-finals of the Wimbledon tournament rather easily by the score of 6-2, 6-1.

Despite the holiday there was an attendance of less than 3,000 at the matches today Only the most ardent followers of the game remained as the temperature was above 90 in the shade and there was no shade

(By The Associated Press.)

PARIS, July 14—Now that the record breaking Olympic track and field battle is over, with the United States victorious after a sensational contest with Finland, whose sturdy sons gained an unusual share of the laurels, the interest in the Olympics which had been concentrated a single sport for the past eight days, today found seven branches of the competition in full swing.

Chief among the attractions today, from the American view point, are the tennis and swimming contests in which strong teams from the United States are picked to go to the finals at the end of the week In addition there are the catch-as-catch-can wrestling matches in which the U. S. is represented in five of the seven finals scheduled to be contested for in the Olympic championships

America is also strongly represented in the rowing competition and the modern pentathlon, which today begin their second day's competition Yachting and fencing contests complete the calendar of activities in Paris and environs.

The western hemisphere has conquered the old world so far in the majority of the Olympic contests and has high hopes of continuing successes in the events remaining before the closing meremonies two weeks from now.

The South Americans gained distinctions by capturing two titles. Uruguay taking the soccer championship and Argentine the polo crown The U. S of course, leads all competitors by winning the track and field competition and also the rugby and shooting contests. This country now holds a formidable lead

The record of points in the Olympic games thus far is as follows: United States, 255; Finland, 166; Great Britain, 85 1-2; Sweden, 31 1-2; France, 26 1-2; Italy, 19, Switzerland, 15; South Africa, 11, Hungary, Hungary, 10 1-2, Australia, 10, Canada, 8, Norway, 6; Argentina, 5, New Zealand, 4; Esthonia, 4; Holland, 4; Denmark, 3; Japan, 1, and Chile, 1

Although the Americans, in a convincing and final demonstration of their all-around supremacy today shattered two more world and one Olympic records the real Olympic triumph went to the new Finnish hero, Alben Stenroos. Under a blazing sun he raced to victory in the classic marathon championship, capping the climax to Finland's clean sweep of the distance races and giving the little Nordic country the greatest laurels it has ever known Stenroos, 40 years old and a Halsinfors wood worker, sped over the 26 miles of country road in two hours, 2 minutes, 22 3-5 seconds, nearly six minutes in front of his nearest rival. Bertini of Italy Clarence De Mar, of Boston, was third, slightly behind Bertini Frank Wendling, of Buffalo, was the next American to cross the line, finishing sixteenth. The other Americans who finished were Frank Zuna, of Newark, eighteenth; Wm. J. Churchill, of San Francisco, twenty-third and Charles Mellor of Chicago, twenty-fifth.

But remarkable as was Stenroos triumph, the highest honor of all in the final analysis goes to his countryman, Paavo Nurmi, who completed a phenomenal record when, leading his team to victory in the 3,000-metre race, he won his fourth triumph of the games.

Astonishing speed was shown by the American relay team in capturing both the 400 and 1600 metre team events in world's record time, while "Bud" Houser, husky California Collegian, broke the Olympic record in winning the discus throw, adding his name to those of Osborn, America, and Ritola, Finland, as the only doubit victors to share a portion of Nurmi's glory. Another world's record also went to America, when the announcement was made that Harold Osborne had won first place in the decathlon with an unprecedented point, score of 7, 710 and a fraction

The Olympic tennis championship play, which got under way yesterday with the American men players triumphing easily in their first matches will continue today with the entrance of women stars in the doubles The most interesting match today is expected to be the one in which Mrs. Marion Z. Jessup and Miss Eleanor Goss meet the strong British pair, Miss Kathleen McKane and Mrs. B. C. Covell.

Helen Wills, the American woman tennis champion, advanced to the second round of the woman's singles through the default of Mme Marnet of Spain. In the men's singles Richards defeated De Laveleye of Belgium, Washburn won from Serventi of Italy and Hunter was victorious over Graham of Finland One of Great Britain's big four, J. D. P. Wheatley was defeated by Fuduka, the Japanese champion.

At Les Tourelles Pool yesterday all the American women swimmers won their heats handily in the 400 metres free style. The American men, however, qualified in only one heat and were soundly drubbed at water polo. In the opening events Gertrude Ederle did the 400 metres in six minutes 12 1-5 seconds; Helen Wainwright in 6:46 3-5 and Martha Norellius in 6ff23 1-5. In the 1500-metre swim America qualified only one man in the three trial heats

In the first heat, Smith of the United Statese finished second to Anison of Great Britain in the time of 22 minutes, 48 45 seconds

BUSH IS TOO MUCH FOR ST. LOUIS, YANKS WIN-- FIGHT AT WASHINGTON

(By The Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, July 14.—Preceded by a barrage laid down by its heavy artillery and supported by a reformed hurling corps, the Yankee division is advancing irresistably toward the heights of a fourth American championship.

The invading hosts from St. Louis withdrew with severe calaulties for the second time in two days under the deadly fire of "Bullet Joe" Bush, who turned them back with five hits on the short end of a 6 to 2 score Ruth, though he failed to bring his Big Bertha into play, was the leading marksman with three out of four, including a triple.

Intense heat and the strain of dogging the footsteps of the sprinting Yankees evidently affected the nerves of Washington players and fans, and an incipient riot almost spoiled an otherwise enjoyable afternoon in the capital. At the close of the Senators game with Cleveland, which the home team won, 15 to 11, a "hot-up" rooter, incensed at the ejection of Manager Harris from the Washington line-up in the ninth inning, struck Umpire Holmes in the face and knocked him against a wall. Umpire Moriarty came to the defense of his brother arbiter and did the same for the assailant.

The crowd started to surge upon the field, but police and players prevented further over acts

The Giants put a damper on the Cubs pennant aspiration by winning an uphill victory before a record crowd by a score of 9 to 6. Home runs by Wilson, Keily nad Jackson, featured the New York attack.

Jake Fournier was the big gun in the Broklyn offensive against St Louis, which resulted in a 9 to 4 victory for the Robins. Fournier hit his 23st. home run of the season and drove in two more counters with a single.

In splitting a double-header, Boston and Cincinnati registered reciprocal shut outs. The Braves won the first four to 0 and were calsominded in the second 6 to 0. In the second game Rixey completed 20 consecutive innings without being scored on.

The NUT CRACKER

BY JOE WILLIAMS

AT THE RINGSIDE

"Ain't it awful what these biscuit and gravy fighters get away with nowadays?"

"Awful It's raw murder. And look at the important jack they pull down, too!"

"Imagine paying a bologna like Dempsey, $400,000 to step a couple terrible rounds. If that's right, then hair nets make great parachutes."

"It wouldn't be so hard to inhale if Dempsey could really fight, but all he's got is a right hand."

—o—

"You uttered a few undying phrases there, Thick Lips. Why, any one of the old-timers would have made him jump out of the ring"

"John L Sullivan would have flattened him with both hands tied behind his ears, and I don't mean possibly."

"And you don't have to stop with John L. either. Corbett would have left-jabbed him simple, and I understand he ain't far from that as it is"

—o—

"I got too much consideration for my imagination to even suggest what Jeffries or Johnson would have done to him without even taking a warm-up."

—o—

At this point a florid-face announcer begs the indulgence of the crowd.

"I have the pleasure, ladies and gents, to introduce to you tonight the champion heavyweight of the world, Mr. Jack Dempsey himself."

—o—

Tumultuous apple sauce.

"And I want to say that this Dempsey has got more class than an Astor lawn fete There ain't nothing he can't do, plus."

"You ain't giving me no inside news, Flat Heels I saw this superman make gray ashes out of Willard at Toledo"

"You can take the rollcall on the old-timers as far back as you want to but I'll string along with Dempsey"

"String along with him? Say, I'd hate to tell you what this Dempsey would do to the mold hams"

Picture of Davis On Stable Door For Thirty Years

(By The Associated Press.)

LEXINGTON, Va., July 14—A photograph of John W. Davis is tacked on a Lexington stable door. It has been there 30 years and will remain if the wishes of the Democratic presidential nominee are followed.

When Mr. Davis was a student at Washington and Lee he formed a friendship with "Uncle Matt" Wilson, a negro servant. The young West Virginian boarded with the family of Prof. James J White and the negro often waited on him.

Then one day, Mr Davis went to Baltimore to attend a meeting of his fraternity and while there had his photograph made He gave one of them to "Uncle Matt" and upon the stable door it was tacked

Mr Davis visited Lexington recently and Dr Reid White who resides in the White home now, showed him the picture He asked what should be done with it Mr Davis requested that it be permitted to remain where his old black friend who died several years ago, had placed it

And so today many persons visit Dr. White's stable to gaze upon the handsome countenance of a young man who now may become president of the United States

May Take Pool to Prison Hospital; Expected to Die

(By The Associated Press.)

RICHMOND, Va July 14—Whether Thomas G Pool, former Virgilina bank cashier under sentence to 15 years imprisonment for embezzlement, shall remain at the local hospital where he has been under treatment for several months or shall be taken to another hospital which has a contract for the care of the state prisoners, will be taken up by the state prison board at a meeting late today Pool's counsel have requested that he be permitted to remain at the institution where he has been confined since soon after his indictment with an ailment which physicians declare probably will cause his death in a few months

Pool, taken into Hustings court here last week on a stretcher after a change of venue from Halifax county had been granted pleaded guilty to two of the nine counts in the indictment against him charging misappropriation of more than $180,000 of his bank's funds Under agreement of counsel he was sentenced to 15 years imprisonment and a request was made by the defense that this be suspended This was refused

Grandstand Gaff

FOUR out of six That's a pretty good record for a week and it's just what The Tobacconists did during the past week here. That kind of work for a few weeks will land the Leafs somewhere near the top of the ladder The team left this morning for a week's road trip, the first three days over at Durham, romping around with Bourg's Bulls and the last three days over at Winston rollicking with Jackson's Twins

—o—

The team will likely undergo some changes this afternoon, Wefers late of the Giants, who has been closely watched by Manager Herb during the workouts, will probably be pushed into the line-up somewhere. Murphy, himself, is again ready for action and may possibly get back into the game today, too Just what changes will be made remain to be seen when the box score becomes available.

—o—

Danville fans were anxious to see Wefers get into action last week, but Murphy wanted to look him over first No doubt when the team returns next Monday for three days with Durham, the attendance will be good, because of the appearance of an ex-Giant and other probable changes.

—o—

That Saturday game was anybody's until Thompson occupied the box in the sixth inning, then it was Thompson's game The fact that he was a "Twin" pitcher may have had something to do with the world of stuff he had on the ball Besides being a "Twin" he did the duties of a Twin too, for he did really more than was expected In the seventh inning he could have made out without any fielders at all, for he whiffed 3 men in a row and in the eighth struck out the next two. The Champs looked like amateurs against his pitching.

Before that bird, Thompson, went in, the game was going as good as anybody could wish. With the count standing 2 to 0 with the 2 on the Twins' side, Myers slammed out a homer with two on and put the locals one run ahead. The crowd was brought to its feet and one fan "showered" Myers with a piece of greenback It was relayed by a feminine fan who dropped it down to Myers through the "chicken' wire. But the fan was minus a greenback and his team lost too. "Act in haste, repent at leisure,' so someone has said.

—o—

Members of the fair sex on the left wing of th grandstand seemed to be "pulling' for Resco and Cochlin, while Eddie Regan was the favorite of at least two fair fans on the right wing.

—o—

Long, Twin outfielder, will not be as popular as heretofore ,especially with the fans who attended the game Saturday. Long came in full speed and deliberately leaped against Catcher Ernst who was waiting with the ball to tag him out. Long's purpose was to knock the ball out of Ernsts hand but it proved too costly for he rendered the Danville catcher unconscious by the severe blow to the ground, where he lay five minutes. Then after Ernst was revived and pointed a reproving finger at him, Long wanted to come back and fight Ernst and judging from his threatening attitude, would have attacked the weakened player then and there had not another player intervened and remonstrated with him. It is refraining from such tactics that makes a player popular

—o—

Land-grant colleges in the United States, which were first established in 1862, now number 68, of which 24 are State universities, 27 are colleges and 17 are institutions for colored persons.

—o—

Buddy the Danville girls will greet you with a smile.

NEW CONNECTING RAILROAD OPENS UP SOUTHERN BOLIVA

BUENOS AIRES July 12—Railroad access to rich territory in southern Bolivia has been made effective by the opening of a stretch of new line connecting the Bolivian town of Tupiza with the Argentine state railroad system at the border town of La Quiaca Bolivian products of this region, including petroleum and various minerals can now be transported by rail to Buenos Aires or to ports on the Parana river

Within another year this line will have been extended northward to Atocha where it will connect with existing rail line to La Paz, the Bolivian capital, and provide a new outlet for the foreign commerce of the entire country, which now has to go by the Pacific ports of Arica and Antofagasta in Chile, and Mollendo in Peru. It will also make it possible to travel from Buenos Aires to Lima, Peru, by rail, except for the boat trip across Lake Titicaca, and will complete another ling in the projected Pan American rail route from Buenos Aires to New York.

Farm Conditions In County Better

CHATHAM, Va., July 12. — The week has been generally wet with showers in some sections nearly every day and this has been very good for growing crops but where the wheat was not well shocked has begun to sprout and farmers in this fix are fearing that their crop will be damaged. Tobacco crop is rapidly growing and corn is coming on rapidly but where the grass was not gotten out before this rainy spell the crop is in bad condition and will require several days close work to put in condition to make good. In some sections tobacco has been topped but the county as a whole is about two weeks behind n this and with favorable conditions most of the tobacco crop will be topped by August.

The regular July term of Pittsylvania county circuit court will convene for the term on the third Monday at which Judge Jones M. Hart of Roanoke has been designated by Gov. Trinkle to hold in place of Judge Clement who is now away taking a much needed rest. Judge Clement ordered before leaving that only jury for trial of criminal cases be drawn for the July term which means that no civil cases will come up at that term which is usually short owing to the fact that it is a very busy time with farmers and a day away from the farms at that time means considerable loss.

Stephen Clement for several years in China with the British American Tobacco Company is now visiting his home in the county near Callands and his brother, Senator N. E. Clement of this place.

Miss Nellie Thompson left this week for a trip to California and will be away more than a month. She went with a party from Lynchburg.

Miss Nannie Mae Bennett and Geo. M Cerugss of Gretna, were on Wednesday afternoon quietly married at the home of Rev W C Gum of the Watson Memorial Methodist Rev. Mr. Gum performing the ceremony which was witnessed by a small gathering of friends The couple immediately left for their home at Gretna

Miss Ellen Celegial Easley and Hurt Blair, both of Pittsylvania county, were on Thursday quietly married at the home of the bride's parents near Banister. Both are very popular and well known in the county where they will reside The groom is a progressive young farmer.

Mrs. Ben A. Whitmore and daughter of Richmond, and Miss Elizabeth Hancock of Richmond, are guests at the home of William Tredway on Lanier avenue.

Miss Allice Rebecca Tredway returned this week from attending a house party at the home of Miss Katherine Gregory in Greensboro.

Interior of the court house building is now undergoing considerable changes in that interior walls are being taken out, windows added and other changes made necessitated by the increase in clerical forces in the treasurers office which has been working under crowded conditions for some time. The added windows will give more light in the front rooms which will very much improve the inside as to use of parts of the room that could not well be used on account of lack of needed light except for a short time during the day.

Charlie Friend, brother of E. E. Friend deputy county clerk is visiting his brother and other relatives here. Mr. Friend is from San Francisco.

Work on the Chatham water works is progressing nicely and with a few week of favorable working weather the cement work will be completed and the water supply about ready for use.

The Royal Ambassadors of the Chatham Baptist church will on Monday leave for their annual encampment week on Staunton River enjoying bathing fishing and other outdoor sports.

Mrs. Marion Jones, of Martinsville, has been the guest at her fathers home, T. S. Jones for several days.

FOUR DIE FROM EATING POISONED FRUIT IMPORT

(By The Associated Press.)

BILLINGS, Mont., July 12.— Marked improvement in the condition of Albert de Richardson, Jr., of Germantown, Pa., and Miss Eugenia Jones, of Cody, Wyoming, believed suffering from Bolutinus poisoning, was reported by physicians today. Four deaths have resulted from the poisoning which physicians say was caused by eating imported ripe olives. A serum ordered from Kansas ity is expected today and Dr. A. J. Movius, physician in charge, said the two already affected and Miss Sara Ellen de Richardson will be inoculated, although he believes all danger is past.

NEW YORK STOCKS.

(By The Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, July 14.—Under the impetus of pool operations stock prices moved upward at the opening of today's market, with the chemical and equipment issues making rapid forward strides. New high records for rthe year were established by various issues. Davison Chemical advanced a point and United States Cast Iron Pipe 2 points.

The scope of trading broadened as the growing volume of buying orders brought the stock market to its sixth consecutive week of rising prices. Inquiry ran chiefly to industrials and specialties, with a fair demand for representative rails. Southern Railway preferred reached a new 1924 high. Phillips-Jones, after a sensational thirty point spurt Saturday, sold 10 points higher at $5. U. S. Cast Iron Pipe extended its gain to 3 points, touching the year's highest price at 99 1-2. A dozen public utility and other issues achieved 1924 top prices and advances of 1 to 2 1-2 points were scored by Gulf States Steel General Asphalt, International Paper and Allied Chemical and others. Foreign exchanges opened strong

NEW YORK COTTON.

(By The Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, July 14.—The cotton market opened barely steady today at a decline of 4 to 17 points in response to disappointing Liverpool cables and reports of good weather in the south except sections of the eastern belt

Renewed covering of July checked the decline right after the call, however and that position sold up to 30.15, a net advance of 21 points, new high ground for the present movement. This started buying of later deliveries and the general market was firmer toward the end of the first hal fhour. October selling at 25.40 or 14 points net higher.

Offerings were comparatively light after the opening decline, selling on the talk of improving crop prospects in the southwest being checked by nervousness over continued showers in the Carolinas and Georgia

Everyman's Investments

By GEORGE T. HUGHES

FORTY-THIRD ARTICLE

Care of Securities.

During the war many new investors bought Liberty bonds who would scarcely have known what a bond was before that time. As soon as the bond was bought the problem arose of how to take care of it. At that time as a patriotic service the banks agreed to keep Liberty bonds without charge to these new investors. They can hardly be expected to do this now. The best way then to care for bonds, stocks, mortgages, deeds and valuable papers of any kind is to rent a safe deposit box which ma ybe done of practically all banks. Charges for these boxes vary with different banks and with different cities but the minimum is around $5.000 a year and is well worth it to anyone who has any amount of securities at all. It is taking needless chances to keep such papers around the home where fire or thieves may destroy or where they may be mislaid. Bonds come in two forms, coupon and registered. Coupon bonds change ownership by delivery. Whoever has the bond may cut off the coupon and cash it. More care must be taken of coupon bonds than of any other kind. Registered bonds have no coupons. Checks for the interest are mailed to the registered holders on interest days by the corporation. There is not so much danger of losing a registered bond because it can be replaced although this involves a certain amount of red tape. It may be asked then why not always buy registered bonds. The answer is that because of the time and formality to transfer ownership the registered bond as a rule brings a little lower price in the market. It is sometimes desirable to dispose of a bond promptly and that is easier with a coupon than with a registered bond. Some bonds, but not all, are interchangeable the coupon for the registered and vice versa. Even this, however, usually involves a small fee for the clerical work. In any case it saves annoyance and may save serious loss to have your bonds and other securities i a safe deposit box.

(Mr. Hughes' forty-fourth article will appear in The Bee next Wednesday.

The REFEREE

BY ALBERT APPLE.

TRAGIC.

A frail little old woman, giving her age as 95, is arrested on a vagrancy charge in one of the smaller communities near New York. The magistrate sends here to prison for six months. Her crime was in having no means of support, and begging a few pennies.

Her fate must be annoying to patriots boasting of our civilization. There is nothing quite so ridiculous and brutal as the law at times.

GIANT

Fossil skeleton of a giant 45 feet tall discovered in Serbia, cables report. His teeth, 18 inches long. We're almost inclined to believe this, for two reasons. First, Barnum is dead. Second the fossil bones are on their way to the national museum in Belgrade.

Odd, though, these marvels always happen far off on the other side of the earth, never at home where we can check up with our own eyes.

DRUNK.

A drunken man at the wheel of a moving auto is worse than a maniac with a gun in a crowded thoroughfare, Magistrate House says in New York traffic court.

Henry Ford made the wisest comment about prohibition when he said that booze had to go when the motor car came in big numbers. The people can't have both. Can you imagine traffic conditions now if the barrooms were wide open again? How many would gladly give up their autos?

DRIFTERS.

Discontented middle-western farmers used to drift from State to State, then into Canada, as if drawn like the compass needle.

The lure of western Canada is on the wane. Canadian government closes a number of land offices it maintained for a quarter of a century in our western States to entice farmers North. One of these, in Omaha, closes its doors after sending 50,000 farmers across the border. They took 54 million dollars with them.

Where do the drifting farmers land now? Cities apparently.

YORK.

Three-tenths of all fruit and vegetables marketed in the United States are now eaten in New York City. Shipments total three million dollars a day.

New York City is the "overhead" of the United States.

BUGS.

Radio keeps many potentially bad boys good. The number of juvenile court cases in America dropped almost 42 per cent. in the past year. Radio deserves a large portion of the credit.

It diverts youthful energy into placid channels.

Crime, after all, is to considerable extent just a matter of misdirected energy. Grown ups as well as children. Many professional criminals would become good citizens if shown that they'd make more money if they'd apply to legitimate work the energy, time, brains and scheming they devote to trying to get something for nothing.

NATURAL GAS FLOWS FROM VENTS IN DRY BED OF TULE LAKE, OREGON

KLAMATH FALLS Ore., July 12.—Eight vents emitting natural gas have suddenly opened in the dry bed of Tule Lake, 30 miles east of here. Tests by J. D. Howard, a local geologist, show the gas to be of paraffine variety. Flames more than a foot in length, burning with intense heat, are reported to have been obtained in tests. The vents or chimneys range in diameter from six to 30 inches and are several feet deep.

Between August 5 and 10 last year water disappeared from eight sections of Tule Lake bed. Howard contends that nature is disproving the statements of some geologists that this area is burnt out by volcanic action. Three oil companies are drilling on the same structure running through the lake bed. All three wells are reported to have shown indications of oil.

Talking Honey

By G. L. FURGURSON

(No. 6)

The little "pound" squares (they seldom weigh a pound) of comb honey that you buy in the stores are produced quite differently fro mthe liquid honey that comes in cans and glass jars. Both, however, are made by the bees in the same cleanly, healthful way.

In comb honey the little square wood frames that surround the honey comb are made from basswood and a thin sheet of pure beeswax, imprinted with the exact size and shape of the center of the honeycomb is fastened inside the frame. These empty frames or sections, as they are called, are then placed, 24 in a box or super and set on top of a strong colony of bees, a second story as it were, for the bees to finish and fill. The bees dislike to work in these small sections, and only do so when there is a great deal of nectar being secreted in the blossoms, and when there are many bees in the hive. Hence comb honey is more difficult for the beekeeper to produce, and costs more per pound, also, than extracted or strained honey.

Choice comb honey is at the very acme of dainty, cleanly, healthful sweets. It has never been successfully imitated nor adulterated. The quantity produced each season is limited, and very often the price is below the actual cost of production, though it seems high to the consumer. Many beemen are giving up the production of comb honey entirely because of its uncertainty and the greater possibility of failure.

Honey should never be stored, especially, should be kept where it is warm and dry. A dust-tight box in the kitchen or pantry is the best place for it.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON.

(By The Associated Press.)

NEW ORLEANS, July 14.—The cotton market opened fairly steady but first trades were 8 to 11 points down on new crops, owing to cables not meeting expectations. The market promptly rallied, however, on buying induced by report of unfavorable weather particularly too much rain where not wanted. October traded up to 24.43 or 14 points up from the low and December to 24.33 or 88 points from the low. There was little interest in July only a few trades being reported at 28.60, two points below Saturday's close. Weather was about the only influence apparent in the early trading.

ONE WAY STOPPERS PREVENT DELUDING GOOD WHISKY

By L. C. OWEN

(Copyright, 1924, by The Bee.)

SAN FRANCISCO July 14.—Canny Scotch one-way corks invented by the equally canny Scotch distillers, and intended to prevent American bootleggers from "cutting down" good Scotch whiskey before it reaches the American consumming public are shortly to make their appearance in this country.

The "corking" idea of the Scots, who are proud of their whiskey in its undiluted form but who are not so proud of it after Canadian and American middlemen have cut it, has just been revealed here by Captain N. F. W. Rockey of Edinburgh proprietor of a Scotch distillery in which seven generations of the Rockey family have been turning out a famous brand of scotch whiskey.

Captain Rockey has been in this country more than three months investigating the difference in Scotch whiskey between the time they leave Scotland and the time they reach the ultimate consumer in America. His investigations, which have included purchases of alleged Scotch from bootleggers in New York Chicago, St. Louis, Denver, San Francisco and almost a score of other large cities has convinced him that one-way corks and every other possible device is necessary if Scotch traditions are to be maintained in America.

"Most of the so-called Scotch whiskey sold in this country isn't real Scotch at all," asserts Captain Rockey. "Your bootleggers not only are diluting it to half its original strength, but they are counterfeiting our labels, corks and even bottles so closely that not even the Scotch distillers can detect the counterfeits.

"The one-way Cork which we have evolved and which already is used in shipments soon to reach America, isn't the only step we are taking to circumvent the bootleggers. However, the non-refillable container which all Scotch distillers now are adopting, will go a long way toward the desired end."
